THE PIRATE'S VISION.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY PRESLEY B. FRENCH.

I woke one night from a troubled sleep;
By my side, white robed, was a figure standing.
With tab in hand, I took a peep.
At the written page, I beheld a grand ring
Styed T. M. A.* Like huge sea gulls
They circled about a large enclosure,
Containing the black cross bones and skulls
Of pirates who feared their own exposure.

I closer gazed. Can such things be?
Amidst the throng, all terror stricken,
I saw a skull. 'Twas mine! Ah, me,
I know I'm lost! I almost sicken.
While looking on to see the rest
Who shared my fate of ignominy.
Nine tenths the playwrights, all the best
And most successful managers in a
Continually narrowing pen I see,
Afrighted, bewildered, all confounded.
"Fair sprite," I ask, "canst show to me
Any who are not thus impounded?"
In answer the ghost no word would say,
But turned a leaf in his vast memoirs,
Showing those who were free to play.
Lo and behold! They were Uncle Tommers!

JUST BEHIND THE SCENES.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY INIGO TYRELL.

Christmas time. There was no doubt about it. Everything and everybody savored of it. The lights of the Christmas trees shone through and gleamed behind close curtained windows, with merry leaps, sending showers of golden sparks up the dark chimneys to emerge more bright and dazzling than ever in the clear frosty air, like fleeting souls hastening through the gloom and cares of life to shine in brighter regions.

There wasn't much going on indoors today, for it was Boxing Day—that day in the old world, sacred to Christmas. Boxes, bills and last, but by no means least, pantomimes. And for one of these last the children were mad with hope long deferred, and what a lot of pantomimes there were, too! Just look at the various headings: "Robinson Crusoe," "The Bottle Imp," "Aladdin" and many other well known stories which had been made to contribute to the common good. But first and foremost and among the varied colored bills was one which informed the reader "that on this very boxing night would be produced at the Corinthian Theatre the gorgeous pantomime, 'The Babes in the Wood,'" then after a lengthy cast, synopsis, etc., and at the end, in large letters, "Clown—Jolly Rob Riggs." The Corinthian must have been a well known resort for pantomime, for that night it was filled to suffocation. The music was catchy, scenery magnificent and grand, ballet had been pronounced by the baldheads "splendid," and by a prime old man to be "disgusting." And now, out of breath with honest laughter, warm, thirsty and parched, like sardines in a box, the great audience sat anxiously waiting for the "grandest transformation ever seen on the earth" (vide bills). If there was excitement in front, so there was behind the curtain. Everyone was busy, excited and nervous, the manager and stage manager not being in, by any means, that happy condition described by the immortal Mrs. Jarley as cool, calm and classical.

Inside the dressing rooms was a man clad in a clown's dress, pacing moodily up and down, and listening with feverish impatience for the footstep which never came. It was Jolly Rob Riggs, and the person whom he awaited was his wife. And she was a wife worth waiting for, too. Young, pretty and loving, Jessie Grey, then only—and, indeed, up to within a week of the present time—a ballet girl, at a West End theatre, had brought some new joy and life to honest, hard working Rob, who, though nearly fifteen years her senior, loved her with as pure a love as man ever gave to woman, and would have cheerfully laid down his life, if it had been necessary, to shield her from harm. And this Winter, when Jessie, through her husband's influence, got engaged at the Corinthian as Columbine, Rob Riggs thought that his cup of happiness was full to the brim.

A knock on the door. "Come in," cried the Clown. Mr. Omnies, the stage manager, entered. Omnies was a little pompous man with a round, red face, and very black short hair—so short that it always stood on end, as if each hair was desirous of looking over its neighbor's head. "I'm very sorry, sir," said the Clown humbly, "very sorry; but Jessie told me tonight that she wasn't well, and would lie down for a bit, and would come later on. I sent a boy to our place some time ago, and she must be here in a minute."

"Minute!" roared Mr. Omnies. "What's the good of a minute? I—who the devil's that?" as a hand was laid on his arm.

It was the Harlequin, in the bills. Frederico Roberto; out of them, Fred Roberts, an old friend of the Clown's.

"I've got an idea," said the Harlequin, giving a kindly, unseen nod to his friend. "Say a few words to the public, and let my girl Daisy go on for the part. She's about Mrs. Riggs' size, and I've taught her to trip long ago."

Miss Daisy Roberto was in the front row of the ballet, consequently could dance well and look pretty; but, best of all, was on the spot. The stage manager did not take long to make up his mind. "Fred," said he to the Harlequin, "you're a mascot. The very thing! Get the girl dressed and I'll get the boss to dig down a speech to 'em in front," 'em being the audience, who were now in a state of noisy impatience. Mr. Omnies hurried off.

"Tell your missis it's all right, old man," said the friendly Harlequin, as he also made an hasty exit.

The clown was about to reply, when a light footstep was heard approaching. A happy smile lighted up his face. "Jess at last!" he said, with a sigh of quivering relief, as the footsteps neared the door. Quickly he turned the handle and threw it wide open, but only to start back with blanched face and a cry of disappointment, for the new comer was not his wife, but the boy he had dispatched an hour previously to find her. "Well," cried the clown, "what did she say?"

The messenger shook his head stolidly. "I didn't ment the great audience settled down with keen anticipation of the fun that was to come. And come it did. With what zest did jolly Rob Riggs trip up the "cop," steal the sausages and go through all the hundred and one odd monkeyshines which go to make up the sum total of a harlequinade! The "Gods" were in one continual roar, and the opinion of that black, seething mass may be briefly summed up in the words of one excited old party, who, carried away by his enthusiasm, flung his neighbor hat into the air, crying:

"Splendid, sir, splendid! Grimaldi was a fool to that fellow!"

And tumbling, grimacing and cracking sly jokes, the clown went through it all. Only the clown, being the audience, who were now in a state of noisy impatience. Mr. Omnies hurried off.

"Tell your missis it's all right, old man," said the friendly Harlequin, as he also made an hasty exit.

The clown was about to reply, when a light footstep was heard approaching. A happy smile lighted up his face. "Jess at last!" he said, with a sigh of quivering relief, as the footsteps neared the door. Quickly he turned the handle and threw it wide open, but only to start back with blanched face and a cry of disappointment, for the new comer was not his wife, but the boy he had dispatched an hour previously to find her. "Well," cried the clown, "what did she say?"

The messenger shook his head stolidly. "I didn't

Street of Sunderland, weary, hopeless and sick at heart, to all appearance a bent, careworn old man, a mere wreck of the merry fellow who, ten years before, had made a vast theatre resound with peals of laughter at his antics and wit. Quickly the clown walked on, for the night was cold and the biting wind, which was fast freshening up into a blizzard, seemed to pierce his bones to the very marrow. When within a few yards of the little hotel where he was staying his arm was touched.

"Buy a box of matches, sir; do buy a box, please?"

He turned. A woman, wretchedly clad and with death stamped on every feature, stood shivering at his elbow.

"How bright it all is, dear," cried the dying woman, as his loving arm gently and reverently lowered her to her pillow. "At last, at last! Rob, darling husband! Good bye!" And with a sweet and happy smile upon her face, Jessie went down with the sun.

Rob still lives at Sunderland, but he is wonderfully changed, though. People say he is mad, and so he is, in a sad, harmless sort of way. For, as sure as Boxing Night comes round, he paints his face and dons his old clown's attire, and there, in the little room attached to the "Red Lion," he sings all his burlesque ditties in a little thin, cracked voice, and tumbles in a mild and feeble way, and plays a few clownish tricks. But Rob's funniest effort is to address all those assembled as "Ladies and gentlemen," and apologize for the non-appearance of the Columbine. Yet when the merriment is over, old Rob, with his clown's dress still upon him, creeps down to the little churchyard, where, with his poor grey head pillow'd on a little marble slab inscribed "Jessie," he pours out a bitter prayer that heaven may take him soon to her he loves so well, and ere he leaves the tomb, with great tears upon his painted face, he softly prays for Jessie too. But soon the end must come—soon the final curtain must fall.

JOHN DILLON.

We present to our readers this week a portrait of that well known and successful actor, John Dillon, whose right name is John D. Marum. Mr. Dillon was born in Ireland, Oct. 2, 1832, and is consequently, in his fifty-seventh year. His father, Richard Marum, Esq., resided at Mt. Stopford, Johnstown, County of Kilkenny, and was a gentleman farmer. His uncle, Kyran Marum, Bishop of Kilkenny, was quite eminent in his day. Mr. Dillon was designed for the priesthood, but circumstances over which the family had no control thwarted the plans of his parents, and his father and stepmother, together with the children and a nurse, came to America in 1848, and settled in Chicago. Mr. Dillon's father invested in real estate on South Clark Street, but did not live long enough to see it develop. Young John worked in the grocery store of Wm. F. McLaughlin until April 23, 1854, when John Langrishe wanted an amateur to do small business, and engaged him, making his first professional appearance as Bohsac in "The Corsican Brothers," at Old Market Hall, Milwaukee, Wis., April 23, 1854, under management of Langrishe & Atwater. He remained with them one year, going on for Dionysius or Beaumant in the first piece, singing "Malloy Bralligan," etc., between the dramas, and doing a walking gentleman in a farce, all for seven dollars per week and found himself. He obtained his first engagement in a regular theatre Sept. 12, 1855, at J. B. Rice's Theatre, Dearborn Street, Chicago, opening as Rob the Grinder, in "Domby & Son," with John Brougham as the star, Wm. McFarland, stage manager, and Sam E. Ryan as comedian. He left there April 16, 1856, for Madison, Wis., to rejoin Langrishe & Atwater. Mr. Dillon was married to Helen Allen, a sister of the wives of the managers. He traveled with L. & A. for over a year. His next appearance in Chicago was at McVicker's Theatre, in July, 1858. He remained there three seasons. In September, 1861, he made his first appearance in New York, at Laura Keene's Olympic, as McGinnis, in "Seven Sons." He was there that season, and returned to McVicker's in July, 1862, opening with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Allen, in Laura Keene's version of "Peep o' Day." His health failing, he was released by Mr. McVicker, and accepted an offer made him by his brother in law, "Jack" Langrishe, for his Denver and Colorado theatres. That was in the Summer of 1863. They crossed the plains by mule team from Omaha, one of the party being genial George Paunceforth, late of the Boston Theatre, under Thos. Barry's management. In February, 1864, he received an offer from Col. J. H. Wood, for Wood's Museum, where he opened. His first engagement as principal comedian was in March of the same year. He was there three seasons, and became a great favorite, his first hit being Green Jones, in "The Ticket of Leave Man." His first starring engagement was at Milwaukee, where, twelve years before, he made his first appearance in "Miriam's Crime" and "Handy Andy." When Hooley's Theatre, Chicago, opened after the great fire, he was the comedian, and remained there that season. His next appearance in New York was in "Crucible," with A. Oakley Hall. He appeared in New York again at Abbey's Park Theatre, under Brooks & Dickson's management, as John Ponny in Simum's "Mother in Law." He was quite successful in the part. His next and last appearance was in the late Bartley Campbell's "Separation." He was at one time the Pittens Green of the Madison Square "Hazel Kirke" Co., with whom he went to California. While at Hooley's he created originals in comedy parts in Bartley Campbell's "Fate," "Risks" and reconstructed "Peril," and at McVicker's, of "All the Rage." Since then, in Scott Marble's "States Attorney," Hayes' "Wanted the Earth," and, lastly, Scott Marble's "Circuit Judge." Mr. Dillon is the father of two daughters; one keeps house for him while the younger is the proud mother of his two lovely grandchildren—a boy and girl—his hope and joy. He has been managed in his starring Western tours by Jas. H. Wallack for three seasons, J. W. Blasdell three, Geo. W. Walters two, and by his present managers, J. H. Shunk and Wm. Roche, two, and is engaged with them for the season of 1889-90 in "Wanted the Earth" and "The Circuit Judge."

sheer, sir," he said; "only the landlady, and she gave me this." The clown stretched forth his hand, shaking like a leaf in the Autumn wind, and into it the boy put the tiny note, on which was written, in a woman's hand, "To be given to my husband."

"You can go," said Rob Riggs, in a voice so hoarse and strange that for a moment it startled the lad.

When the door was again closed the clown looked at the tiny missive. Was she frightened that he would be angry with her for remaining so long behind him, and so did not care to come at all, but wrote instead? That must be it. With palsied hands he hastily opened the letter and read: "Husband, good bye; I shall never see you more. I am going away with someone who loves me very much. You were always good to me. May God forgive your poor lost Jessie." Nothing more. Only an old, old story, with a vulgar clown and his wife for though, for God's beautiful masterpiece, man, was gone. When his poor, throbbing, frenzied brain seemed to stand still for a moment, and he fell to the stage, what a shout went up! Funny! Ha! Ha! He's a regular fun doctor! And their laughter reached its culminating point, in one great roar, when, during a horripile by the pretty Columbine, two large tears fell down the pantomimist's face, leaving ruts through his "makeup" as he, in burlesque fashion, attempted to emulate it. "He's crying with laughter!" roared the excited spectators, and they cheered him to the echo for so heartily entering into the spirit of the thing. At last the end came. One last wild trick, one last vivid glare from the "red fire," a last mad "rally" and, amid tremendous applause, the pantomime was over. As the orchestra struck up the stirring strains to play the audience out, the Clown staggered off the stage, as he had staggered on. Ere he could reach his room two men stopped him. One was "Omnies," the other Disney the manager. "My boy" said the latter, taking him by both hands, and shaking them warmly, "you've surpassed yourself. If only your wife could have seen you!" That was enough. For a moment Jolly Rob stood erect, and then, with a wild, gasping cry, fell heavily to the ground. The Clown was gone, but the man was there.

Rob Riggs raised his head. Was it pain alone that gave that awful deathly look to his face and fixed glassy eyes? Was it clowning that caused the strong man's hands to shake as if he were suffering from age? And, above all, was it art or nature which made that bitter cry of agony arise from the uttermost depths of a broken heart?

At this moment the call boy's voice was heard: "Mr. Riggs, the stage waits." Mechanically the clown receded to the door, and down the narrow passage, and staggered through the wings on to the brilliantly lighted stage; and then in a voice more resembling the croak of a raven than the utterance of a human being, gave vent to the time honored utterance: "Here we are again!"

Ten years rolled by. Ten long, weary years they had been for Rob Riggs, who had never given up the search for his lost darling. A few weeks after his great loss, a distant relative died, bequeathing a small annuity. On this he lived, or rather existed, wandering aimlessly about the country in the hope of one day finding his wife, whom, in spite of all, he loved as fondly as ever.

And this Boxing Night he was walking down High

No," retorted the clown morosely; "I don't want any," and walked on. But the beggar was persistent and detained him, and, as the whistling blast lulled in its fury, her voice rang in his ear.

"Buy a box, sir; just one. Do!"

At the sound Rob Riggs turned with blenched lips and shaking in every limb. "Let me look at your face," he cried, hoarsly; then, as the pale light of the moon fell upon it—and with one gasping shriek he cried: "Jessie, dearest, don't you know me?—Rob, your husband?"

But her lips were mute, for his long lost wife lay insensible in his arms.

She was dying, the doctors said—dying of cold and want. So they told her husband sitting by her bedside at the little lodging.

"Can nothing save her?" asked the clown.

"Nothing on earth, my poor fellow. Nothing."

And the medico looked out of the window and blew his nose violently to repress unbidden tears.

"Rob."

"Yes, darling."

"Are you sure you quite forgive me?"

A loving kiss was the only answer. "Jessie, I won't be long," he whispered.

"Listen!" and by a great effort the dying woman raised herself—then suddenly—"Rob, gear, what day is it?"

"Christmas Day, Jess."

"Ah! so it is, and Boxing Day tomorrow. More light for God's sake, more light!"

The doctor made a movement of his hand, and drew back the curtains from the little window which looked upon the sea, on which lay a broad patch of gold, from the last rays of the setting sun upon the waters of the deep.

LAST Winter's coat, with the lining torn out, is fashionable for office wear. It should be decorated with red ink and mucilage.

The long agony is over. The pugilistic contest upon which has been centred the attention of all classes of people on both sides of the Atlantic for months has been decided, and the result has been the restoration to the premiership of the long time invincible John L. Sullivan, who on this occasion proved that he possessed all the qualities requisite in a high class pugilist. It had been confidently predicted even by those who were favorable to "the big fellow" that he must necessarily win the battle in short metre if at all, the impression being general that it was prolonged he would be found wanting especially when opposed by a boxer of the tried powers of Jake Kilrain. Those who argued thus were at fault. Sullivan brought into magnificent condition by William Muldoon not without a deal of hard work showed that he was not only a fast and furious fighter, but that he had the necessary stamina to withstand a long siege, and then come out of the ordeal with flying colors and in good physical shape. Below we present a detailed account of the battle, telegraphed by our correspondent on the ground, which will be found very readable. The excitement occasioned among all classes in the metropolis and Brooklyn by the fight was intense, and as the hour of battle drew nigh it reached the fever heat point. The sidewalks in front of those newspaper offices which displayed bulletin boards were early partly blocked with the old, young and middle aged, all eager to obtain the slightest intelligence from the southwest, while the numerous tickers in the saloons in all parts of the twin cities were continuously surrounded by deeply interested searchers after information regarding the result of the greatest pugilistic event of any age. As customary upon such occasions, false rumors were plentiful, and they served to keep the excitement at the top notch, as well as to stimulate the spirit of betting; while in several instances they were responsible for giving rise to bitter discussions that resulted in an exchange of blows by the warm partisans of the rival pugilists, warmed up by a mixture of enthusiasm and alcohol. Sullivan was the general favorite, and the betting upon him ruled at odds of 10 to 7, at which figures considerable money was staked on the issue. The early rumors were to the effect that Sullivan had won the battle in three, eight and nine rounds respectively, which intelligence caused the partisans of the big fellow to exercise their lungs exultingly, but subsequent dispatches to the effect that the information was untrustworthy gave rise to a feeling of doubt and uncertainty that was even worse than the previous suspense. Owing, it was stated, to the fact that the single wire that had been put up for the purpose of telegraphing from the ringside to New Orleans, had been cut, there was a long and tedious delay, it being late in the afternoon before reliable information was received. As Sullivan had all along been a prime favorite, the information that he was the victor was received with demonstrations of delight everywhere.

OFF FOR THE GROUND.

The Trip to Richburg Miss., from the Crescent City—Exciting Incidents.

Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 9.—In order that Sullivan and Kilrain might secure a good night's rest before beginning the serious work of the morrow, they were quietly conveyed from this city to the locote chosen for the fight, Rich's Mills, Miss., about one hundred and six miles distant, in a special train, which started from the depot of the Queen and Crescent Railroad about half past three o'clock p.m. on Sunday, July 7. The train consisted of a locomotive, baggage car and two sleeping coaches. Kilrain's party, consisting of himself, Charley Mitchell, "Pom" Moore, "Bab" Masterson and Charley Davies occupying one of the sleepers, and Sullivan and his immediate friends, William Muldoon, Mike Cleary, Jimmie Wakely, Jack Barnitt and Phil Lynch, being quartered in the other. The baggage car, which was placed between the coaches, had on board the paraphernalia of the ring. Mike Donovan and Johnny Murphy were to have accompanied Kilrain, but arrived at the depot just too late for the fair. It had been the intention to start the first train of excursionists at 4 a.m., but with a view to reducing to a minimum the possibility of interference by the militia which probably no better place could be found in the country. It is in the very heart of the pine district. Great pines, rearing their heads skyward, form a background to the few houses, breaking the sky lines with their vivid green. Behind these trees, as seen from the railroad, or rather in the very heart of the town proper, was the place selected for the scene of the greatest fight ever witnessed in the Union. Within a stone's throw is a colored church, white in the distance appears the houses of the humble abodes of the mill hands. In short, Richburg body and soul, so to speak, is owned by Mr. C. W. Rich. His mill gives it commercial importance, while his hands constitute the chief population.

A Sheriff Easily Disposed Of.

When the first train arrived at Richburg at 7:30 a.m., Bud Renard and Pat Duffy were met by Jimmie Wakely, one of Sullivan's backers. Wakely had gone over with John L. the night previously. He said that the Sheriff had arrived, and declared that if the fight took place there it would have to be fought over his dead body, and that he would throw both principals and seconds in jail. Friends of both parties, who were anxious to see the fight take place, demanded that the principals be placed in the ring, agreeing to have fair play and a fight, notwithstanding the Sheriff's threats of collecting fifty men as posse. The gentlemen held that 2,500 well armed men could manage a posse of fifty without much trouble. When the two men entered the ring, the Sheriff walked calmly to the ring side and told the large crowd that he could not allow the fight to take place. The crowd hissed him and shouted: "Throw him out!" He was not thrown out but he was given to understand that that would be his fate if he persisted, so he walked out under a strong protest. The ring was pitched about a quarter of a mile from the railway track. Outside of the ring was a rough wooden palisade, on three sides of which were seats, arranged in amphitheatre form. Then came a space for the camp stools, which cost $15 each. Inside of this came a palisade on the south side of the ring proper, forming an enclosure, in which there was a line of rough desks which had been set apart for the accommodation of reporters. Then came a railing forty-eight square, and inside of this came the ring proper, which was, of course, the required twenty-four feet. The ring posts were round, of dressed pine, eight in number, one on each corner and one in the middle of each side. Heavy inch and a quarter ropes were passed through holes in these posts, the upper one about five feet from the ground, and the lower one or two feet below it. The ground in the outer rings was liberally sprinkled with sawdust from the mill. The inner ring was of turf as demanded by the rules. As the men stood up in their corners, stripped for the fight, though each looked every inch a gladiator, there was apparently a great disparity in size, though, if the weights reported by the respective parties be correct, their disparity was more apparent than real, for Kilrain was reported to have weighed 195lb and Sullivan 205lb. Sullivan is stated to have gained nearly two pounds a day during his stay in New Orleans, while it is reasonable to suppose that, as much as Kilrain did, but little training after his arrival in the city, he too must have put on a pound or two at least, after coming South.

Looking at the two men as they stood up, stripped for the ring, however, anyone would have said that Sullivan was by far the heavier man, and so pronounced is this impression that it is difficult to believe that the big fellow's weight was accurately stated in the figures given out concerning it. It seems probable that the statement of his weight already referred to was made on an estimate rather than by actual test on the scales. Had it been stated that Sullivan weighed 217lb and Kilrain 197lb, the statement would have gained ready credence. Though both looked like formidable men, they were of such wholly different types that it would be wise to mark to attempt to institute a comparison.

THE BATTLE.

The Clipper's Accurate Description of the Seventy-five Rounds Contest.

Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 9.—I now give you an accurate sketch of the fight. Kilrain looked elegantly proportioned from crown to foot, and though a big man, seemed of the lithe, wiry sort. Sullivan, on the other hand, was the very type of the sturdiness of old time gladiators. His legs, though not large, carried him well, but he was about the waist that Sullivan looked up a veritable giant. His chest is broad, full and deep, enormous in every respect, and the development of bone and muscle in his back, shoulders and arms were correspondingly massive. At exactly 10:24 o'clock a.m. "Time" was called, and the combatants shook hands and went to work. Both men carried the left low, and only moderately extended; but, while Kilrain held his right somewhat loose across his chest, with the forearm extending upward, Sullivan held the forearm almost lightly against his chest and in an almost horizontal position, showing a peculiar anxiety to counter at the first available opportunity. After a few passes Sullivan led short, and Kilrain, catching him by the neck and securing a hip lock, threw him rather heavily, going down on top, though "the big fellow" rolled him off just as the seconds had come to pick them up. This round was a very short one, not more than a half a minute at most, and no punishment was inflicted on either side.

This was another short round. As Sullivan came up smiling, it was seen that his back had been slightly bruised by the fall in the first round. They came together as before, but this time Sullivan seized Kilrain by the waist and as the latter broke his hold the Boston boy gave him a vicious blow in the ribs, with his right before he could get away. Sullivan tried again with his left, but Kilrain jumped aside cleverly and was out of danger. They then came together and went down heavily, Sullivan on top. Time about a minute and a half. They clinched almost as soon as they faced each other and some tremendously heavy infighting followed, each landing on the others ribs with such force that the blows sounded all over the ring. It was here that Kilrain made a very serious mistake. He proved a strong fighter, but in this line Sullivan is phenomenal and, as was seen later on, the punishment Jake received in this round told terribly against him. He was so badly hurt in the region of the heart that it took him a long time to recover even temporarily from the effects. Kilrain finally got away, and after he had danced around for a few seconds they came together in Sullivan's corner and the big man went down. This round lasted about three minutes, and it was one of the most terrible of this fierce battle. Kilrain landed some heavy blows and had the best of the fall, but these were far outweighed by Sullivan's heavy right hand blows in the short ribs and in the region of the heart. Indeed, with each of these half arm hits Sullivan's ponderous fist would seem to be buried in Kilrain's side. The sight, though a grand one, was sickening.

Both men were somewhat distressed after their terrific encounter in the third round, and though both answered promptly to the call of time, they sparred for wind as they faced each other at the scratch. Sullivan feinted with his left, but Kilrain jumped promptly away, and was out of danger. Sullivan was evidently anxious to land his dangerous right again, but his antagonist would jump nimbly away and thus get out of danger. They clinched, and Sullivan getting the lower hold, hugged his antagonist with terrific force, and, lifting him clean off the ground, tried to throw him, but the latter wriggled out of his grasp, and as he was getting away planted his left with striking force on the big man's eye. This was followed some fierce and rapid exchanges, each making play for the other's head and landing with telling effect, the blows falling with dull, ugly smash that made even the nose rattle at the ring side shudder. Sullivan led for Kilrain's breast, but the blows fell a trifles short, and Kilrain cross countered on the giant's neck; but though the blow was heavy enough to knock an ordinary man clear off his legs, Sullivan only tossed his head and laughed contemptuously as he danced backward to avoid Kilrain's next. Kilrain led viciously for the stomach, but Sullivan stopped the blow very neatly and jumped back out of harm's way. Then came a clinch, but Sullivan broke Kilrain's hold and pushed him away, laughing as he did so. Both now sparred for a breathing space, and some one offered $500 to $300 on Kilrain. Sullivan, turning in the ring, said to Charley Johnston, his backer, "there's a bet for you over there, Charley." After more sparring for wind, Sullivan rushed in and tried to force the fighting, trying to upset Kilrain in the head, but the latter jumped nimbly away. In a second attempt to force the fight, Sullivan lowered his head and rushed in, but Kilrain, springing aside, locked his left arm around his antagonist's neck, and was down with the force of his rush, and twisted the big man's foot as he sat on the ground. This round, though of some three minutes' duration, did not result in any marked advantage for either man, though Kilrain appeared the more distressed of the two when it terminated.

5. Sullivan feinted and Kilrain jumped quickly away, smiting. Then followed rapid exchanges on the jaw and neck, but, as Kilrain ducked and sprang aside, Sullivan met him with a vicious uppercut in the eye, which staggered him, but did not send him off his feet. Recovering quickly, Kilrain led for Sullivan's ribs and landed twice, but he was given to understand that that would be his fate if he persisted, so he walked out under a strong protest. The ring was pitched about a quarter of a mile from the railway track. Outside of the ring was a rough wooden palisade, on three sides of which were seats, arranged in amphitheatre form. Then came a space for the camp stools, which cost $15 each. Inside of this came a palisade on the south side of the ring proper, forming an enclosure, in which there was a line of rough desks which had been set apart for the accommodation of reporters. Then came a railing forty-eight square, and inside of this came the ring proper, which was, of course, the required twenty-four feet. The ring posts were round, of dressed pine, eight in number, one on each corner and one in the middle of each side. Heavy inch and a quarter ropes were passed through holes in these posts, the upper one about five feet from the ground, and the lower one or two feet below it. The ground in the outer rings was liberally sprinkled with sawdust from the mill. The inner ring was of turf as demanded by the rules. As the men stood up in their corners, stripped for the fight, though each looked every inch a gladiator, there was apparently a great disparity in size, though, if the weights reported by the respective parties be correct, their disparity was more apparent than real, for Kilrain was reported to have weighed 195lb and Sullivan 205lb. Sullivan is stated to have gained nearly two pounds a day during his stay in New Orleans, while it is reasonable to suppose that, as much as Kilrain did, but little training after his arrival in the city, he too must have put on a pound or two at least, after coming South.

8. Kilrain's right eye was badly discolored, though not swollen. Sullivan advanced hurriedly to renew hostilities, but Kilrain danced away from him, laughing. Cries of: "The cur!" Sullivan followed up Kilrain, and, as the latter faced him, landed on his ribs. Kilrain countering lightly on the knee. Some rapid exchanges were followed by a clinch and a breakaway, and then the Marylander landed on Sullivan's bleeding ear once more. Kilrain followed up his temporary advantage, and a sharp rally followed in Sullivan's corner, Kilrain planting his left with such stinging force just under Sullivan's right eye as to open a gaping wound, from which blood flowed freely. In the clinch which followed Kilrain was thrown. During this round the seats on one side of the amphitheatre came to the ground with a crash, and John R. Rogers was seriously injured. Time, 1m.

9. Kilrain got a hold on Sullivan's right arm and tried to twist it, but both men were now seeking with perspiration and, his hold slipping, he went down without injury.

14. This was nearly a repetition of the last round, though Kilrain appeared a shade stronger than might have been expected and cleverly avoided punishment. In the clinch which closed the round Sullivan slipped down his back striking against one of the posts. Sullivan again walked to his corner, Kilrain being carried to his by his seconds. Time, 1m.

15. Sullivan was smiling grimly as he came to the scratch, but to his surprise he found Kilrain getting fresh. As they came together there were some rapid exchanges. Sullivan tapping Kilrain sharply on the nose, bringing the blood, freely, though he did not get away without a heavy return on the stomach. They sparred for breath for a few seconds, and then Sullivan led with his left, for the ribs, and as Kilrain broke ground he aimed a vicious right hand at his head, but the latter ducked and Sullivan failed to land. Kilrain now made a perceptible change in his tactics, keeping well away from his dangerous antagonist, while cries of "You cur!" halted him from all parts of the amphitheatre. Sullivan appeared slow in the earlier part of this round, and Kilrain did most damage. Sullivan was smiling grimly as he came to the scratch, but to his surprise he found Kilrain getting fresh. member of one or two local teams, and then first becoming noted for his heavy striking abilities. In the neighborhood where he lived, he was well known as a young fellow who could make his part at any and all times, and one who was ever ready to do it, and there were few of his associates who cared to provoke or engage in a physical alteration with him. He used occasionally, as he advanced toward maturity, to participate in public sparring entertainments, having a liking for the sport of fistfights, and having picked up some knowledge of the mysteries of the art without the service of a master. It was not, however, till the spring of 1880 his name began to be mentioned outside of his native city—during the time that Mike Donovan and Joe Goss were preparing for their matches with George Rooker and Paddy Ryan. Having occasion to visit the Hub professionally, they each sought as a suitable opponent at their respective exhibitions a rising boxer who had "downed" some good local sparrings, and the insight each of them obtained into the fighting qualities of their opponent impressed them deeply with the abilities of John Sullivan as a boxer, as well as a wonderfully active man for such a big 'un. George Rooker was the next customer for "Sully," and he proved utterly unable to stand any length of time before the young Bostonian who by this time had gained the声誉 of "Strong-Arm" Sullivan. J. B. McCann, of The American Amateur Boxer, early in the winter of 1880-81 induced him to take a trip to Cincinnati, there to give an exhibition. On that occasion he "bested" John Donaldson, a very clever Ohio heavyweight. Some of the sports of the place wanted to see more of it, and Donaldson was being offered inducements to again face the Boston boy, they fought for a purse, with gloves, Dec. 24, 1880. After receiving two or three vicious punches, Donaldson, who was satisfied before he commenced that he was no match for Sullivan, kept at as respectful a distance from him as possible, and at the end of the tenth round gave up the struggle, after they had been engaged twenty-one minutes. In March, 1881, Sullivan decided to give a public exhibition in New York City. He did this after Billy Madden (then engaged at Jim Keenan's on Portland Street, Boston) had promised to accompany him. Arrangements were made for a show at Harry Hill's Theatre on the afternoon of Thursday, March 31, and Sullivan for the first time offered fifty dollars to any man who would box four rounds, Queenberry rules, with his hands knocked out of joint. Steve Taylor was not then the fine, powerful boxer he was when he took better care of himself, and he made but a sorry exhibition, lasting through two very one-sided rounds, in which the first couple of blows dazed him, and he was repeatedly knocked down. This, of course, improved Sullivan stock. Parties in the city were anxious to see more of the Massachusetts masher, and a few days afterwards an agreement was made for Sullivan and John Flood, who had gained some reputation as a good class rough and tumble fighter to contend for a purse P. R. rules. The contest took place May 16, 1881, on a barge which had been towed up the Hudson River to near Yonkers. It was a very scrapping affair, mainly because the New Yorker persisted in hugging his opponent, who was thereby prevented from performing so effectively as he otherwise would. Flood was downed in every round, and at the end of the eighth, when they had been at it sixteen minutes, his backer gave in to him, as he saw he did not have a chance. Sullivan had been trained to get off easily by Billy Madden, and had worked over his appetite for a few articles, not so beneficial as they were palatable to a man in training. Afterwards efforts were made to arrange a glove fight of a stated number of rounds with Paddy Ryan, then champion of America, admirers of the big fellow in Boston offering to hang up a purse of $2,500 to contend for, but Ryan would not agree to fight otherwise than with the naked fists. This Sullivan and his manager, Madden, were not prepared to do at that time, and the latter shrewdly concluding that there was a lot of money to be gathered by giving a series of exhibitions in the different cities, arranged for a tour. At each of the exhibitions given an offer of fifty dollars was made to anyone who would stand before Sullivan four rounds. This offer was repeatedly accepted, but the money was never won, the Bostonian easily "doing up" his adversaries, the majority of whom were knocked out in short order. This phenomenal work added greatly to his reputation, but it did not bring him the title of champion he so determined to have a try for the position. Accordingly overtures were made to Paddy Ryan, with success, and articles were drawn up for a fight for $2,500 a side and the championship of America. The fight took place at Mississippi City, Miss., on the morning of Feb. 7, 1882, and Sullivan, assuming a strong lead in the opening round, and holding it all through, won in nine rounds the actual fighting time being 10m. 30s. A series of exhibitions was subsequently given by the new champion and his partner, Billy Madden, Sullivan adding to his fame by the ease with which he disposed of those who faced him in mimic combats with the mittens. During the five following years he knocked out many men in all parts of the country, with the gloves, the first pugilist of note to fall before him being that clever boxer Jimmy Elliott, who fought Johnny Dwyer for the championship. They met at Washington Park, this city, at a picnic and exhibition gotten up by Madden, and they were announced to box four Queenberry rounds with medium sized gloves July 4, 1882. Rain was falling when they came on the stage, but they did not mind, there being enough for either to suffer any ill effects from the storm, as Sullivan, after displaying marked superiority in the first two rounds, settled Elliott by the third. Some time afterwards Joe Collins, alias "Tug Wilson," a boxer residing at Leicester, arrived in this country, and was taken hold of by Arthur Chambers, of Philadelphia, who, seeing a chance to make good money, matched him against Sullivan to fight four Queenberry rounds with the gloves, the receipts to be divided in equal portions between the principals, Chambers and Madden. The contest came off at Madison Square Garden, this city, July 17, 1882, when Sullivan, while demonstrating his great superiority, failed to knock out his wily antagonist, who acted on the defensive, clinched often and frequently went down from a touch, besides being repeatedly knocked off his pins. We have not space to enumerate the numerous four round glove contests engaged in by Sullivan in different parts of the country, and will only briefly advert to the more important in the list. Sullivan and Madden having had a disagreement, and later withdrew from the combination, they jointly hit the "road," and took a trip to England, his object being generally believed to be to find a man who might be able to make at least a good show in opposition to John L. He offered prizes in cash for a boxing competition for the championship of that country, which came off at St. James Hall, London, in the winter of 1882-3 and was won by Charles Mitchell, who then first came into special prominence, although he had previously fought Jack Burke a draw with the bare 'uns. Madden brought Mitchell to the States, and after the newcomer had proven his quality by defeating Mike Cleary at American Institute Hall, a match was made with Sullivan. They met at Madison Square Garden, May 14, 1883, to fight four rounds Sullivan to receive 60 and Mitchell 40 per cent. of the gate receipts. The crowd was fully as large as that which filled the big building when Sullivan met Wilson, the tariff on both occasions being high. The agreement was to fight four rounds, each of three minutes duration, and the contest was stopped in the third round by the police. Mitchell being visibly beaten. He knocked Sullivan down in the first round by a blow on the jaw. Heribert A. Shadie, a Maori, was then brought from Australia by Jim Mae and matched against Sullivan, and the contest, which was governed by similar conditions, took place at the Garden Aug. 7, 1883. The result was a consummate victory for Sullivan, who once knocked his heavier antagonist clean off the stage with a right hand in the stomach. The other principal glove contests in which John L. engaged were as follow: Beat G. M. Robinson, San Francisco's great heavy weight handler and boxer, four rounds, the latter repeatingly falling without a blow, San Francisco, Cal., March 6, 1884; beat Frank J. M. Lafin, four rounds, gate receipts, New York, Nov. 10, 1884; met Alf Greenfield, gate receipts, New York, the contest being stopped in the second round, Nov. 18, 1884; bested Greenfield, gate receipts, four rounds, Boston, Mass., Jan. 12, 1885; met Paddy Ryan, Madison Square Garden, but the police put a stop to the fight at the end of about thirty seconds, Jan. 19, 1885; beat Jack Burke, five rounds, gate receipts, New York, May 13, 1885; beat Dominick McCabe, seven rounds, Chester Park, Cincinnati, O., gate receipts, Aug. 29, 1885; beat Frank Hearld, gate receipts, one round, Allegheny City, Pa., Sept. 13, 1886; beat Paddy Ryan, gate receipts, three rounds, Ryan being knocked out, San Francisco, Nov. 13, 1886; draw with Patsy Cardiff, six rounds, gate receipts, Sullivan breaking one of the bones of his left forearm in the first round, Washington Rink, Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 18, 1887. The injury sustained by Sullivan compelled his retirement for several months, and the tour of the combination, with Pat Sheedy as manager, he having succeeded Al Smith in that capacity came to an end. Having nearly recovered the use of his arm, Sullivan again took the road with a combination, under the same management, March 28, 1887, appearing first at Hoboken, N. J. The tour was not very successful, however, owing mainly to the fact that Sullivan was not yet in full possession of all his powers. On Aug. 8, 1887, he was presented at the Boston Theatre, Boston, with an elegant and very costly diamond belt, which had been subscribed for by admiring mainland residents of the city. The belt was the personal property of Jake Kilrain, and he in the interim forfeited the title of champion to Kilrain by reason of not accepting a properly issued challenge from the latter, whom he followed to England, leaving Boston on the steamer Cephalonia Oct. 27, 1887, having us manager Harry Phillips, a sporting Canadian. He made his first appearance before an English audience at St. James' Hall, London, Nov. 9, and was tendered an ovation, while his setto with Jack Ashton created a very favorable impression, the critics being astonished at his wonderful quickness and the force of his blows. He met with success in his tour of the United Kingdom, but would have done far better financially had he been properly managed, which he was not. He threw away a lot of chances to make good money by making a match with Mitchell, the unfortunate result of which not only injured his reputation as a pugilist, but proved most disastrous in a pecuniary sense. The fight, which was cunningly brought about by the Englishman to make capital for himself and Kilrain, his chum, then matched with Jim Smith, to fight for the championship, was decided near Chantilly, France, May 10, 1888, and after fighting thirty-nine rounds in an hour, 50m., 10s., a draw was declared in the sketch above. The draw was a great surprise to the friends of Sullivan, who had the effect of lowering their estimation of him as a fighting man, notwithstanding the plausible excuses offered for his failure to achieve the victory which they had deemed certain, and his reception in the metropolis and Boston when he returned home, shortly afterwards, was not flattering. Not long after his return to the States he was stricken down with an attack of sickness, largely the result of excesses in which he had indulged, and for many weeks was confined to his bed, his condition for days being critical. Good medical attendance and careful nursing eventually brought him around again, but it was a long time after being able to get out of doors that he could walk without the assistance of crutches, so weakened was the once mighty athlete. This brings us up to the match with Kilrain, the particulars of the making of which are narrated later on. Sullivan's physical measurements, taken at the time of his match with Ryan, are as follows: Height, 5ft. 10in.; biceps, 16in.; forearm, 14in.; thigh, 25in.; calf, 16in. When a boy his parents removed to Boston, Mass., where he spent his school-days and whence left school he went to work in a rolling mill. It was while here that he was dubbed "Kilrain," his proper name being John Joseph Kilian, and when he first began to appear in sparring shows at the Hub he went by the nickname of Jake Kilrain, which has stuck to him ever since. He early evinced a liking for fistic sport, and frequent practice with the mittens made him very proficient in the use of his bunches of fives. He appeared at the benefit tendered Sullivan at Mechanics' Building, Boston, in the Spring of 1883, and engaged in a setto with Pete McCoy, whom he had the credit of "besting" in three rounds. A few weeks afterward he gained the upper hand of George Gruffy, the celebrated head-banger in a set-to at Gruffy's Opera House. His reputation also increased, and during this time he was a promising member of the Bradford Boat Club, a flourishing organization. He represented that club at the regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, held in 1883 on the Passaic River, at Newark, N. J., proving successful in the junior single scull race. He won the final heat easily, defeating John Grayson and R. H. Braan. He afterwards formed one of a four oared crew that met with success on the Charles River, defeating two other crews; a few weeks later was in a winning crew at the regatta of the Union Boat Club, and was in a four that were beaten at the annual Fourth of July regatta on the Charles River, finishing second to the Middlesex crew. Although his prospects of gaining fame on the aquatic race course were bright, he did not persevere, casting aside the sculls and sweeps for the padded buckskins and coming out as a professional pugilist. He met Jim Goode, the English boxer in a six round contest for a purse of $150, under the rules framed by the Marquis of Queensberry, at the rooms of the Cribb Club, Boston, October 1883, the contest resulting in a draw. His next opponent in a similar contest was Paddy Ryan, with whom he boxed four rounds, for the gate receipts, at the Mechanics' Institute Building, Boston, March 26, 1884, the result being a draw, while the cleverness displayed by the Bostonian when pitted against so capable an exponent of the art as Mitchell improved his stock. On May 8 following he met Wm. Sherin alias "The Prussian" in a like contest at Union Hall, Cambridgeport, Mass., and Jake had him about settled when the police interfered in the third round. He next encountered Mike Cleary in a four round boxing match, for the receipts, at Madison Square Garden, this city, June 26, 1884, which resulted in a draw, although many were of opinion that Kilrain had the best of the setto. Jake again tried the calibre of Jim Goode, July 3, 1884, at Battery D, Chicago, the gate receipts being at issue, and the same result—a draw—being reached. He was next seen in front of the smart Irishman Jack Burke, the go-to-taking pugil, on May 11, 1884, and after a tame contest of five rounds a draw was declared. Another boxer from abroad, George Freyer, who was once amateur champion in his class in England, was Kilrain's next antagonist, their meeting in a contest of six rounds, at the rooms of the Boston Boxing Club, who had put up a purse of $500. The result was another draw, neither being able to "do" the other in the time. His next encounter of note was with Jack Ashton of Providence, and took place at the Ridgewood Baseball Grounds, Brooklyn, L. I., on the afternoon of July 31, 1884. They fought eight rounds, honors being nearly even, but Kilrain getting the verdict. Kilrain and Frank Hearld met at Bishop's Trotting Park, Baltimore, Md., Nov. 8, of that year, the agreement being to fight ten rounds, for the admission receipts, but a right hander in the opening round nearly knocked Hearld out, whereupon the police seeing Frank's condition, called a halt, the bout having lasted only 2m. 50s. The foregoing contests were all waged with medium size gloves, the gate receipts being at the ordinary rate of 50¢ a person. ## THEATRICAL RECORD.

Movements, Business, Incidents and Biographies of the Dramatic, Musical, Minstrel, Variety and Circus Professions.

NEW YORK, JULY 9, 1889.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL NOTES.

The Hardie & Von Leer Co. is now complete and includes beside the stars, H. S. Foringer, T. C. Medinger and wife, Chas. Saunders and Lillie Burdell, Peter H. Gardner, Stella Lawman, Prof. John L. Lahm, Frank A. Gordyn and the Seneca Nation Indian Brass Band, which has the reputation of being the best brass band in America. Hardie and Von Leer are having a magnificent set of musical instruments manufactured for them mounted on silver and gold. James M. Hardie writes: The Indian costumes will rival anything ever before seen in this country for a street parade. We are doing our utmost to make this the effort of our career, and our company will be the finest we have ever carried. The tour will open Aug. 12. Sara Von Leer sailed for Europe July 6, on business and pleasure. She will return about Aug. 16.

J. T. Ford has completed a new dramatic composition, entitled "The Southern Cross or Max Crumm's Cryptogram."

The "Time Will Tell" Co. will open their season Aug. 12 at New Haven, Ct. The make up of the troupe is as follows: Billy Williams, Billy Kennedy, John J. Magee, Frank Drummer, Robert Milton, W. Blesher, Lizzie Hunt, Belle La Verde, Annie Reaney, Frances Martin, E. D. Colvin manager; E. C. White, business manager, and Chas. Eberhard, musical director.

Perkin-D. Fletcher will have on stage "Gold Day" on the road next season. This company will be formed of the best material in the two companies of last season, and will be the strongest.

Mr. Fisher has yet had Carlotta has been re-engaged, as has John Sheehan of Sheehan and Coyne. A young ladies' quartet will also be engaged. Mr. Fisher and family are spending the summer at De Land Cottage, Hull, Mass.

Gertie Honan is re-engaged for next season's "The Burglar" Co.

Francis Kingdon closed his season with H. C. Witwer's Co., July 6 and will spend his vacation at Monmouth Beach, N. J. He signed for next season with Jennie Holman, to play leading juvenile and light comedy parts.

Richard Mansfield's company for next season will be composed of Americans. When it is completed Manager E. D. Price will return to England to look after the shipment of the scenery, costumes, properties etc., made for Mr. Mansfield's production of "Richard III" at the Globe, London. E. B. Noyes, who was Mr. Mansfield's stage manager at the Globe, is re-engaged for America. The orchestral leader, master carpenter, property man, armorer, wigmaker and wardrobe mistress will also come from the Globe.

Beatrice Cameron is the guest of Miss Clarke, sister of the late Rev. Walter Clarke, head master of Derby School, at the Vicarage, Beeley near Bakewell in Derbyshire Eng. A portion of her vacation will be spent in London with the family of J. J. Lyell, an intimate friend of Mr. Toole. Miss Cameron will probably visit Scotland before returning to America in October to play Lady Anne in Mr. Mansfield's production of "Richard III."

Gustav Ambeng cabled from Switzerland last week that he engaged Felix Schwighofer, the clever Viennese comedian for the Ambeng next season. Vienna's Nestrau and Scholtz will also come.

A fire at Edensburg, W. T., July 5, destroyed ten blocks of the best portion of the town. The Nash Opera House block, including the Opera House, City Hall, the Board of Trade building and the building lost, was among the buildings burned.

C. J. Wilson, musical director, is composing and arranging the music for Ada and Rille Deaves' "Chow Flat" Co.

Mme. Luisa Cappiati sailed for Europe July 6. She will return in September.

Mary Young (Mrs. W. A. Edwards) is summering at West Brighton, Coney Island.

Manager M. B. Leavitt and Emily Rigl were among the European bound passengers from this city July 6.

Lillian Grubb, having recovered her health, will spend July at Cape May, N. J. Early in August she and her husband, David Bayman, will make a flying trip to San Francisco. She will return to the stage in September.

Randolph Murray, who has been at Newport, R. I., will sail for England July 10, to visit his old London home.

The professional scandals at the watering places have started early in the season. Frankie Keenly figured indefinitely in an affair at Long Branch, N. J., June 6. At the hotel on the same date itself, William and his wife, Dennis Keenly quarreled with the result that Mrs. Williams taking with her their infant protege Baby Willis left the town with Dr. De Silva, a Brazilian. An eloquent hint is sent. Mr. and Mrs. Williams have been married about three years.

William Smart, who has done good work with Lawrence Barrett and F. B. Wardle, will play the young priest in the production of "The Last Days of Pompeii" at Cleveland, O., July 22.

Theo. Stark has been engaged by Manager W. S. Baldwin for the coming season.

John T. Macaulay of Louisville, Ky., is in this city, with headquarters at Klaw & Erlanger's.

Klaw & Erlanger state that in spite of their new and large headquarters they are crowded for room, and intend shortly to fit up the entire basement of their building to give them sufficient accommodations for managers and agents. Mr. Erlanger is reported to have come from a five days' business trip through New England.

James Burrows, who left the Boston, Mass., Museum to join Richard Mansfield's forces, will return to his old position next September, and until then will support Kate Claxton, whose company she recently joined.

Miss Siddons is resting in this city.

Charles MacGeachy has concluded after all not to tour Sarah Althea Terry, the lecturer. He has canceled all engagements. Mrs. Terry declares she will go out under her own management.

The long pending trouble between Alf. C. Wheeler and his wife broke out afresh July 6, at Buffalo, N. Y., where Mr. Wheeler is playing with the Spencer Opera Co. His wife went from New York and charged him once more with desertion. The matter was afterwards patched up. Mr. Wheeler says he is suing for absolute divorce.

A host of CLIPPER readers will regret to learn that Manager John F. Ford of Baltimore, Md., in getting up a cast for that city, evening of July 7, started in the way of runaway horse. He was knocked senseless, but on coming to, he walked home although he was severely bruised.

Milton Nodles' book—"Shop Talk"—has been issued by the author. It well reflects his literary cleverness and his agreeable humor.

Yore's Grand Opera House, Benton Harbor, Mich., was dedicated July 2 with Chas. Wells and Mollie Jeffries in "A Noddy Outcast." The new house is said to be one of the finest theatres in Michigan. It is situated in one of the most thickly populated portions of the State and has a seating capacity of 1,027 folding opera chairs. The stage is 30x75x35ft., and is supplied with a full set of grooves. The flats are 18x26ft. The entire house is lighted by electricity. The executive staff: Patrick Yore, proprietor; R. F. Trevellick Jr., acting manager; Fred Hollister, treasurer; Prof. Chas. Swan, leader of orchestra; C. W. Miller, scenic artist, and Will M. Austin, master of properties.

Julian Mitchell and Georgia Lake were married in this city about June 22. They are both members of Hoyt & Thomas' "A Hole in the Ground" Co.

Jay, the versatile comedian, starring for the past two seasons, under the management of John S. Moulton, through New England and the provinces, goes out next season under the management of C. W. Currier, who has recently purchased Mr. Moulton's interest. Mr. Hunt and his manager have been in this city the past week engaging a company, and as they have been particularly fortunate in their selection, the indications are that Mr. Hunt will have a stronger and better supporting company than ever before. The printing will be elaborate and of the best, and several novel ideas in advertising are to be introduced.

At Stearns, Mich., June 20, 21, 22, Harry L. Beck produced his new five act military drama, "Captain Ned or the Two Fugitives," with this cast: Ned Thorn, a true Union soldier, Ronald Singleton a villainous uncle (the two fugitives); Leo Dudley, Harry L. Beck; Felix O'Rafferty, Ireland's greatest drill master; End Forman; John Morton, a patriotic citizen; Tom Mackin; Harry Morton, his son, a chip of the old block; E. J. Willard; Captain Robinson, recruiting officer; Wade Stewart; Bob Hawley, a Union soldier; John Van Ness; Dave Graham, a Union soldier; John Miller; Rastus, a sunburned cook, sutler of the camp; Harry Moore; Sergeant Cochran, a rebel sergeant; Louis Walters; Jim Smike, a rebel high private; Arthur Wood; Nemo, the Unknown; Eddie Singleton, a loyal sweetheart afterwards a Sister of Charity and then a country boy; Marie Roderick; Sophia Scrabapple, a loving and lovable old maid; Jennie Greenough; Dickie Jones, a New York boxer; Willie Shurley; Mrs. Morton, a doting mother; Mrs. C. G. Tracy; Bobbi, a girl noted for her quickness of action; Harry Moore, Goddess of Liberty; Kitte Mackin; Mr. Dudley purchased the play immediately after the performance and will star in it next season. He is well known in the G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans camps in Illinois and the adjacent States under whose auspices he is expected to appear. Mr. Beck writes: I am spending the Summer at Chicago, combining business with pleasure, by writing a series of military sketches for "The Gopher", a National Guard paper published here. Week of July 7 Tom White, Harry Pierson, Frank Battersea, Lorree and Rawitch, Charles Kent and myself spend the week at Camp Lincoln, Springfield, Ill., as guests of the Second Regiment E. N. G., during their annual tour of camp."

Marshall P. Wilder sails from London Eng. for home July 15.

J. J. Holland, formerly of Aug. Daly's has been engaged for the cast of "The Great Metropolis."

The best thing for the Western tour of "The Old Homecoming" has not yet been completed.

Mr. P. Bowes is touring at Leland's, Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, N. J., for the Summer.

Fred Lotto after an absence of four years will return to the stage next season, appearing in "A Leg of Wreck."

The Held in Slavery Co. closed their season last week at the People's Theatre, Chicago, Ill., and with the exception of Joseph Coyne and Joseph Downs, who will summer at Chicago, all the company have returned to this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Dowd Byron had an elaborate display of fireworks on the beach fronting Villa Byron, Long Branch, N. J., July 4. Mr. Byron fired on the last piece himself. It represented an eviction scene in Ireland. At the proper time the firecrackers were blown to small pieces by a genuine American bomb and the American flag and eagle appeared. A luncheon on the lawn followed. Among Mr. and Mrs. Byron's guests were Mrs. George Gunning, S. Bedford, Frederick Gehring, Mr. John Drew, Harry Weston, John Burke, Count Gugnani and Arthur Wilson.

William Kilpatrick, the expert drum major of the Kezay Band has signed with the Louise Arnol Co., to open at Easton, Pa., Aug. 1.

Walter's Merry Makers closed their season last week at Williamson, Pa.

R. B. Monroe and Bernard Dally arrived safely in London Eng. June 21. The former is on a fortnight's tour of the provinces to secure a novelty for "My Aunt Bridget" Co.

Manager J. L. Hooper of Farville, Va., is attending the semi-centennial celebration at Lexington, Va., as one of the alumni.

J. J. Murphy late of Robert Buchanan's Comedy Co., is summering at the home of his mother near Chicago, Ill.

E. E. Clarke is spending his vacation at Ellsworth, Me. He has signed to go out with Edwin Arden again next season.

Joseph A. Gibbs has been engaged to play Villiers in "Monte Cristo," supporting James O'Neill next season.

Earle Remington and Lew. A. Warner and wife spent the Fourth very pleasantly with their friends and relatives at Spencer, Ind. Mr. and Mrs. Warner have signed with J. H. H. Huntley for next season, to do comedy and boys' roles respectively. The couple are now resting at the home of their parents.

The complete roster of Edwards & McDowell's "Mugs Landing" Co. is Jas. S. Edwards (business manager), Alf. McDowell (stage director), Harry Bernard (advance representative), Edward Hess, B. George Jasz, Wymess, Jno. E. McDonough, Leigh McGowen, Gen. F. Baker V., Cook, Gracie, Emmie, Katie Edwards, M. Francis, Baby Sadie and the New York.

Edwards & McDowell's company for next season will be composed of Americans. When it is completed Manager E. D. Price will return to England to look after the shipment of the scenery, costumes, properties etc., made for Mr. Mansfield's production of "Richard III" at the Globe, London. E. B. ## VARIETY AND MINSTREL GOSSIP.

THE DIAMONDS and jewelry of William Emerson were sold at auction at San Francisco, Cal., July 2 as a sequel of his unsuccessful attempt to make a go of the Bijou Theatre in that city. It was stated that the jewels were, during the controversy between Mr. Emerson and the owners of the theatre, placed in the now defunct California National Bank as security for Mr. Emerson's share of rent. The majority of the ornaments were diamonds, and some of them were very highly valued by Mr. Emerson as they were presents received by him during the palmy days of his career as a minstrel. The gross receipts of the sale, aside from a lot of silver tableware, were $789.50. A gold watch went for $120, a big sojourn diamond ring $45, gold fob chain $215, a small diamond ring $45, diamond sleeve button $1.00, diamond lockets $70, large square diamond and sapphire scarf pin $48, horseshoe diamond and ruby scarf pin $32 and turquoise scarf pin $14. Building for some of the pieces was quite spirited.

AT SCHUBER'S CONCERT GARDEN, Rockaway Beach, this week: Geo. W. Wood, Katie Grey, Phyllis Abbott, E. J. Clark and O'Day, Lew Johnson, the Brunelles, Kathie Goldhamer and Hen G. Clark.

SOME of the prisoners of the Ohio Penitentiary at Columbus gave a vaudeville show to their fellow inmates and some friends July 4. Chas. G. Seymour, formerly of Irwin Bros.' Show, and W. W. Black of "Keep It Dark" assisted.

HARRY EDWARDS and Daisy Kernal have closed a very successful six weeks' engagement with H. R. Jacobs' American Star Specialty Co.

THE BERRY BROS.' MUSICAL COMEDY Co. are said to be doing a good business through Southern New York, despite the floods and wa-hous. George Burnell, Donna Stickney and Morris Cronin joined at Franklinville, N. Y., July 6.

EDWARD E. EVANS has profitably terminated his Eastern tour and is now resting at Cincinnati, O. Late next month he will start for San Francisco for a fourteen weeks' tour of the coast.

T. J. JORDAN and wife, J. W. Roberts and H. J. Kelly are sojourning for winter in the ROSTER OF Forepaugh's Advertising Car, No. 2; Sanford H. Robinson, manager; D. R. Kelly, boss billposter; Chas. Webster, lithographer; Tom Henry, assistant lithographer; Geo. Saunders, W. H. Hoskins, H. Lischinsky, C. Miller, Joe Miller, E. C. Laird, Andy Warn, H. Capits, John Sharp, J. M. Buckner and C. C. Bedell. Mr. Robinson was formerly with "The Stowaway" Co., and will join the same party at the close of the present season.

J. C. FARLEY'S BALLOON SHOW is touring Louisville. Zeno, the aeronaut, has made over one hundred ascensions this season, and has not yet met with a serious accident.

LOUIS BATES, the aeronaut, had a narrow escape from death July 6 at Ashbury Park, N. J., owing to the storm her performance with a balloon, and a parachute did not come off on the Fourth, as was advertised. Afternoon of 6a great crowd gathered at the North Ashbury ball grounds to enjoy the spectacle. Miss Bates used a large fire balloon, which was liberated at 6 o'clock. She remained in the car until the balloon had reached a height which was declared to be nearly half a mile when she unfolded her parachute and leaped out. For a second she dropped like a lump of lead, and it seemed as though she would be dashed to pieces on the ground. An involuntary groan issued from the crowd. But the parachute soon decreased her downward motion, and she descended gracefully and slowly into Dead Lake. In any case Miss Bates would have had a hard time in the lake, for she is not a good swimmer; but she became entangled in the ropes of the parachute, and sank to the bottom of the lake, which is twelve feet deep at that point. Luckily, some gentlemen rowing on the lake were able to rescue her.

W. J. O'BRIEN of Healy & Bigelow's Co., No. 25, now touring Rhode Island, paid us a visit July 8, and informs us the party are doing well. This is the third week at Coventry, and they intend remaining two weeks more. The party consists of Dr. B. F. Pierce, Frank Higgins, Billy O'Brien, Chief White Cloud, Running Elk, Wounded Wolf, Black Bear, Squaw Wild Flower and Baby Rolling Thunder. Frank Higgins of this party is the proud father of a ten pound baby boy, born recently. Mother and son are doing well.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI.—In an amusement way, the city is as dull as it possibly can be. There is not a theatre open, and when "The World" came to an end July 7, at Harris', the season of 1888-9 died a natural death. The nights are very cool, and for July business has not been bad, although no fortunes have been made during the heat term.

KOHL & MIDDLETON'S MUSEUM.—This is the one oasis in the theatrical desert, and its flag is still there. In curio hall, a great air ship was displayed. Then there were De Eac, Enders,....Mique, which has been enjoying a few days at his old home, Terre Haute,....Will Farnsworth, back from the west of Indiana, where he piloted the express of spiritualistic secrets, J. W. Fletcher,...Lee Williams is very happy, and he expects a long time next season, even if he will be with Siberia,....Hubert Henck is off on a fishing jaunt,....Manager Harry C. Berger left for his home, at Richmon, Va., after a pleasant sojourn here,....Manager John H. Haylin returned from New York in time to shoot off a few firecrackers on the nation's birthday,....Mrs. A. N. Romer, once a well-known costumer, was buried 1. She had charge of the wardrobe at Wood's Theatre during the regime of B. Macaulay.

Steubenville.—The City Opera House is dark, W. D. McLaughlin, the new lessee and manager, is superintending the remodeling of the stage and an auditorium. When finished the interior will present a striking contrast to last season's house,....The London closed last week for eight weeks. During the shut down Manager Hammarly proposes making some changes in the interior.

Toledo.—The Haverly-Cleveland Minstrels are booked for July 22 at Wheel r's Opera House,....The Libadie-Rowell Co. close their three weeks' engagement at Presque Isle Park 13. They have been doing fair business and giving a very satisfactory performance,....The Standard Theatre will remain closed for about two months, and is for rent.

CANADA.

MONTREAL.—At the Theatre Royal Bessie Tannehill played a return engagement July 1-6 in "That Boy Next Door" to good business. Afternoon and evening performances on June 29, July 1, were for the benefit of the families of the wounded and they got bumper coming,....Grayson's Opera Co.

CYCLOMATA.—Business was fair last week. Notes. Manager H. R. Jacobs is in town,....Mr. Jacques is in town, in advance of Barnum's Circus,....Manager Thomas, of the Academy, is back from the fishing grounds.

Quebec.—The Grayson Opera Co. played at the Academy of Music week of July 1, to good business, considering the hot weather.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Washington.—Al. Albaugh's Grand Opera House, the Lamont Opera Co., in "The Beggar Student," July 8-13; their tenth week,...."The Three Black Cloaks" was given 1-6 in a highly creditable manner. The houses were fairly good throughout the week. The really excellent work of this company and the admirable manner in which the opera is put on deserve the highest commendation. Minnie De Rue, who was a great favorite here last summer, makes her first appearance this season with the Lamont Co. Charles Turner, late of the American Opera Co., Annie Montague and Frank Pearson, who has just completed his musical education abroad, will also appear for the first time. "A Night in Venice" 15-20.

New National Theatre.—The Thompson Opera Co., in "Il Trovatore," July 8-13; their third week,...."The Mascot" comfortably filled this house 1-6, and it was capital put on and sung under the musical direction of Herman Perlet, Jennie Winston, Blanche Chapman (her first appearance here with this company), Rose Leighton and Rose Beaudet were the principal ladies, while Frank David (new to the company here), Wm. Gant and Wm. Wolf of the gentlemen made the well worn but very pretty opera pass off with more than ordinary vim. The houses were good, remarks being made concerning the house and the opposition of the audience, fully good attraction elsewhere. "The Merry War" 15-20.

Globe Theatre.—Business is usually good, and picked up considerably 1-6 in consequence of the closing for the summer of Kerman's New Theatre. Manager Roop 1-6, however, that notwithstanding the good business, he will close for at least four weeks during the hottest weather, in order to take a little rest at the seashore. The new people July 8-13 are: Clark and Buskirk, Carrie Day, Carl and Louise Coffeys and Annie Raymond. Stay over: Charles Pacy, Flora Mitchell, Archie Royer and Murray and Weiden.

EDEL'S SUMMER GARDEN.—A concert is given every evening at this place by local instrumentalists.

NOTES.—The new building on the site of old Lincoln Hall, corner of Ninth and D Streets, has at last had its foundation laid, and the first story will be well under way by the end of this week. It promises to be a very large structure, covering 100x126ft. of ground surface, and is to cost something over $100,000. This will make too valuable an investment for a concert hall, and it is more than likely that some enterprising manager will take hold of it for a theatre, and put in the best attractions at $1.75 and 25 cents. Whoever does it will have a fine mind of his own. The location is central. Four lines of cars, taking in all sections of the city, pass almost the very door, an advantage possessed by no other house in the city,....E. H. Bay, one of our most prominent lawyers, has just returned from a visit to Manager Mack, whether he went in the interest of Robert Downing,

MISSOURI.

St. Louis.—"Said Pasha" is drawing crowded houses to Schneider's Garden Pavilion, and seats have to be placed outside the building to accommodate those who come late. July 4 Frederick Urban took the part of Terano in place of Harry Batterbury, who had become hoarse.

HUBIE'S CAVE GARDEN.—"Nanon" drew fairly well last week. Ada Glasea made a hit in the title role. "The Chimes of Normandy" will be given this week.

KENSINGTON GARDENS.—The minstrels are drawing well.

PALACE THEATRE.—Billy and Ella Watson, H. C. Wagner Charles and Minnie Osborn, the Electric Trio, Master Frank Young, Golden and Coyne, Ida Barnett, Kelly and Mack, Geo. M. Spence, Minnie Sarielle, Frank W. Evans Jr. and the stock this week. Business is fair.

ESHER'S THEATRE.—Bellie Thornton, Lizzie Hastings, Little Welch, Ella Raime, Mike Carroll, the Thorne Sisters, Delavoye and Victoria, Little Mason, Eva Howard, and Lew and Emma Milton this week. Business continues good.

DETROIT.—It has been decided to tear down the building which is 160ft. in diameter and fronts on two streets, and to erect in its place a permanent Saengerfest will be held under the direction of Detroit's musical leader, Prof. F. Abel. The following solos are booked: Emma Juch, Mrs. C. Alves, Mons. A. Toufouin, A. Dierkes, A. Beresford and Prof. Wm. Yurick. An orchestra of sixty pieces and a selected chorus of five hundred voices will assist. A ball follows.

DETROIT OPERA HOUSE.—July 23, 24, the Haverly-Cleveland Minstrels, headed by Sweatman and Rice.

DETROIT RINK.—On July 9, 10, 11, 12, the Ninth Annual Saengerfest will be held under the direction of Detroit's musical leader, Prof. F. Abel.

The following solos are booked: Emma Juch, Mrs. C. Alves, Mons. A. Toufouin, A. Dierkes, A. Beresford and Prof. Wm. Yurick. An orchestra of sixty pieces and a selected chorus of five hundred voices will assist. A ball follows.

DETROIT.—The ghost makes his regular seven day perambulation,....Forepaugh's advance car, No. 1, is expected here daily,....Paper is up for the Bostonians at the Grand 11-13.

Boone.—"The Phantasma of Singing Flowers" will be sung by amateurs July 9, 10, "The Streets of New York" (local) had fair houses 3, 4, C. E. Phillips proprietor of the Opera House, is in New York on a pleasure and business trip.

MICHIGAN.

Detroit.—Sombreness reigns supreme around the theatres. Amusements of all kinds are at a standstill, pleasure seekers taking to the Summer resorts so plentiful in this vicinity. They will soon be treated to two lively entertainments—minstrelsy and saengerfest.

SAN FRANCISCO WIRINGS.

Big Business the Rule on the Pacific Coast.—T. P. &amp; W.'s Minstrels to Disband.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., JULY 9.—At the New California Theatre, R. B. Mantell's Co. was greeted by a crowded house last night, when "Monbars" received its first performance here. The supporting company includes Mark Price, B. T. Ringgold, Archie Lindsay, Kendall Weston, H. W. Montgomery, Charlotte Behrens, Mary Maddern, Marie Sheldon and Clara Flagg. Miss Behrens was warmly greeted by a host of friends and applause and flowers were plentifully bestowed upon her. Thatcher Primrose & West dissolve partnership Aug. 30. Their business here has been phenomenal. Next season George Thatcher will join Barney Fagan and organize a separate troupe. Primrose & West will continue their partnership, which has lasted so many years, and organize their own new company. Mr. West did not come here with the troupe, and I believe, is not interested in the profits on this particular trip, which have been substantial. Much surprise is expressed at the news, especially since the firm not long ago renewed articles of partnership for three years. We look now for W. S. Cleveland to come to the top of the heap.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sam Jack's Lilly Clay Colossal Gaiety Co. opened Sunday, 7, to a crowded house. The engagement closes 13.

BUSH STREET THEATRE.—Duncan B. Harrison's Co., in "The Paymaster," opened the last week of their engagement last night to a large attendance. "One of the Bravest" comes 15.

TIVOLI.—"Pinafore" continues the attraction this week. The house will close 13 for alterations and repairs.

ALCAZAR.—"Waddy Googan" was presented last night. The success of Edward Harrigan's engagement is assured, as the theatre has been crowded to its utmost capacity ever since Mr. Harrigan's opening night. The audiences have been very enthusiastic. The advance sale is unprecedented in the history of the house.

BALDWIN.—The engagement of Frohman's Lyceum Theatre has been a most brilliant success and eminently satisfactory to the management. "The Wife," "Sweet Lavender" and "The Marquise" will be done this, the last week of the engagement. The subscription sale of seats prevented the production of "Sweet Lavender" last week. Aug. Daly's Co. begin a three weeks' engagement 15.

BIJOU.—"Devil's Caresfoot" receives its first presentation on any stage 13. It is a dramatization of H. Rider Haggard's novel, "Dawn," of which other revisions have been seen on Eastern stages.

OPHEUM.—Dr. Klug's giant microscope and the Eddy Family continue to large business.

NOTES.—"The Last Days of Pompeii" is a positive success at the Central Park Gardens. Gilmore's "Twelve Temptations" gave a performance at Fresno, Cal., 8. Tillie Morrissey, of the Orpheum, left for St. Louis 8 to visit her mother.

J. H. Decker is having a good time here, "seeing" Chinatown and other sights. This does not, however, prevent him from attending strictly to business, and that his efforts are appreciated can be surmised from the fact that Thatcher, Primrose & West last week presented him with a costly diamond horseshoe scarf pin. Harry Mainhall has received an offer of an engagement with the "Shenandoah" Co. Eddy Kilday has been secured by Jos. Murphy as business agent. Rose Coghlan will appear at the Baldwin Aug. 5. Paul Davis, a well known amateur, appeared last week at the Baldwin in "The Marquise" cast. Professionals here have liberally subscribed to a fund for the relief of the family left by the late Henry Lyons the scenic artist, recently killed at the Central Park. Mr. Lyons was well known, having been a "grip" at the Baldwin for many years. August Piton has been here for a fortnight. Al Hayman, manager of the New California Theatre, has entirely recovered from his recent illness. E. J. Buckley opens in this city Aug. 26. Ethel Brandon went East 9.

BOSTON'S LATEST NEWS.

The Weather Too Warm, and the Hubites Too Much Interested in the Fight to Attend the Theatres.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

BOSTON, MASS., JULY 9.—Unpleasantly warm, muggy weather prevailed all day yesterday, and when evening shadows fell astant the thresholds of our theatres and dime houses, it was still a too calorific stricken town for the poor inhabitants to even think of venturing within doors for their fun. Besides, news of the great prize fight did not begin to reach us in definite shape until nearly nine o'clock, and the mob preferred to hear from "N'Orleans" than to sit in the sultry atmosphere of a superheated theatre. Threatening chunks of rain clouds banked themselves in the sky, and it made things ominous for those who thought of doing Oakland Garden or Pains' "Fire in London" at the Huntington Avenue Amphitheatre. So, all things considered, our houses were not winners to any alarming extent on the opening of the week. Perhaps few more such opening days would develop a sudden resolution on the part of the managers to "shut up shop" for the Summer, and take things easy at the seashore.

TWO DEATHS AT CHICAGO.

"Enoch Arden" Does Not Open at the Advertised Time.—"Blue Beard Jr." a Go.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

CHICAGO, ILL., JULY 9.—"Enoch Arden" failed to open Sunday night, as advertised, at Hooley's. By four o'clock in the afternoon it became apparent that the scenery could not possibly be put into shape in time, and the sale of tickets was stopped. It devolved upon Will McConnell to make the unwelcome announcement to a large audience in the evening. Last night the play was given in fine style. Much depends upon the scenic effect and the fourteen specialties introduced, and, enjoyable as the performance is, it is a question whether the legitimate dramatic effect of Tennyson's "Enoch Arden" is not sacrificed in the endeavor to make the production a catchy one with the public. The second edition of "Blue Beard Jr." which was presented last night, is an improvement over the first, and, in its new and attractive dress, the piece ought to still further increase the remarkably successful run already insured for it. The weather is hot—the hottest of the season in fact—and the patent theatre coolers are being used to their utmost capacity. Sunday night Emily Lyton, the Minna of the "Little Lord Fauntleroy" Co. at the Columbia, was taken out for a ride on lake by Herbert A. Parsons, a wealthy club man of San Francisco and an Idaho mine owner, at present residing in Chicago. Mr. Parsons had frequently promised to teach Miss Lyton to swim, and after they had donned bathing suits in the cabin of the yacht Mr. Parsons plunged in. Miss Lyton found the water too cold, and before she could be induced to enter it her companion was seized with cramps and was drowned.... On July 3, Jennie E. Mortimer, wife of Harry J. Mortimer, of Mortimer & Long's Theatre Co., died of Bright's disease, aged thirty-one. She was buried 5, at Mount Calvary Cemetery. The funeral was attended by professionals and the floral tributes were numerous.

BY WIRE FROM ST. LOUIS.

Opera and Minstrels in Opposition, But Big Audiences Rule.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

ST. LOUIS, MO., JULY 9.—Schneider's Garden was closed last night, and "Said Pasha" commenced its third week with every promise of success..... The Chimes of Normandy had good attendance at Chrig's Cave Garden.... The Kensington Gardens were crowded to see the minstrels.

NEW JERSEY.

ATLANTIC CITY.—At the Grand Opera House, Mrs. George S. Knight inaugurates her Summer season July 8 and week in "Over the Garden Wall."

NOW IRON PIER.—"Uncle Tom's Cabin," by Rice's Juvenile Co., is continued as the bill for this week.

HORWARD'S PIER.—Ned Thomas' San Francisco Minstrels, with people as per last letter, continue this week.

GOVERNOR'S PAVILION.—Week of 8: The Virginia Trio (Haley, Manning and Williams); Harry Roemer, Ida May, Keating and Ardell Byron and Blanche the Everets; J. E. Grant, Heider and Bowers; Phil and Crissie Sheridan, and John and Edna Vidocq.

DOYLE'S PAVILION.—People July 8; Sefton, Tom Flynn, Ada Jones, Kaye and Henry Wills and Adams; Jones and Edwards; Hughes and Farron, Gallagher and West; John and Jeffreys; Pendy, Harry Budworth and George France in "Wide Awake."

BOWKER'S PAVILION.—Week of 8: Gideke Sisters; La Petite Kitty Gray Sisters; Lydia Shearer Mitchell and Loraine; Needham and Kiley; Van Leer and Barton; Bryant and Saville; May Stanton and Katie Randolph.

ALBERCT'S GARDEN.—Week of 8: Mulligan and Linton Lamont and Siegrico; Wesley Dewillard and St. Julian.

WAVERLY'S.—Jennie Ward, wife of Odell Williams, who had been singing at Alberct's Garden for the past few weeks, disappeared July 5, and it is thought she has eloped with a man named De Silva, who had been paying her marked attention for some time previous. The affair created quite a sensation, and much sympathy is expressed for Mr. Williams, who, with his wife, was a member of the "Beacon Lights" Co. last season.... Louis R. Benz, one of the proprietors of the Ida Pier, has been conducting for several years past an unending search for his brother, Charles Renz, and wife, Cassie Renz, operatic singers. Their last appearance in America was made at Steinway Hall, New York, in 1873, they sailing for Europe October 25 of that year. The latest word Mr. Renz has of them was about 1882 when they appeared at Covent Garden, London, and since that time nothing has been heard of them notwithstanding strenuous efforts to ascertain their whereabouts.... Odell Williams has signed for the part of Pettingill in "Featherbrain" for next season.... There was quite a stir among the theatrical fraternity July 8 when it leaked out that Martin Kane, the lessee of Howard's Pier, had disappeared, and that the minstrel performers who have been occupying the boards there for some time past were minus a week's salary, which ought to have been made good by Mr. Kane. He should have been at the pier on Saturday night, but failed to turn up, and, after consultation, Ned Thomas and his performers agreed to keep the matter quiet until 8, and in the meantime make a search for the missing lessee. He could not be found, however, but his brother, Barnes McMillan, of Philadelphia, offered to make up the amount for him to save further trouble. Morning of 8 Ned Thomas made an arrangement with Al. Shields of Philadelphia, the owner of the pier, to run the show throughout the season, taking seventy-five per cent. of the receipts and agreeing to pay the performers and all running expenses. Mr. Shields is getting twenty-five per cent. clear. Mr. Kane has had the amusement fever for several years. He had put up $300 as a guarantee that the show would be kept running all season.

HOBOKEN.—The following people, in conjunction with Thomas & Watson's "Surprise Party" are booked at Cronheim's Theatre this week: R. G. Knowles, Chas. Phillips, Blanche Sherwood, Latta and Lynch, Vennetta and Adams, Donovan and Albright, Chester Sisters and Edina Burnett. Business continues good.... Professors are responding nobly to Treasurer Schiller's call for volunteers to appear at his third annual benefit July 11, and it promises to be a brilliant affair. John Hammond intended Independence week should be purely American in its nature and scope, but unfortunately the company was Celtic. Therefore, Celtic song and Celtic humor were the prevailing feature during the week.... Nelson, the chief of the band, has been ill for some time past, and the band has been unable to play for a fortnight.... Young Lyons, the scenic artist, recently killed at the Central Park. Mr. Lyons was well known, having been a "grip" at the Baldwin for many years.... August Piton has been here for a fortnight.... Al Hayman, manager of the New California Theatre, has entirely recovered from his recent illness. E. J. Buckley opens in this city Aug. 26.... Ethel Brandon went East 9.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

BOSTON, MASS., JULY 9.—Unpleasantly warm, muggy weather prevailed all day yesterday, and when evening shadows fell astant the thresholds of our theatres and dime houses, it was still a too calorific stricken town for the poor inhabitants to even think of venturing within doors for their fun. Besides, news of the great prize fight did not begin to reach us in definite shape until nearly nine o'clock, and the mob preferred to hear from "N'Orleans" than to sit in the sultry atmosphere of a superheated theatre. Threatening chunks of rain clouds banked themselves in the sky, and it made things ominous for those who thought of doing Oakland Garden or Pains' "Fire in London" at the Huntington Avenue Amphitheatre. So, all things considered, our houses were not winners to any alarming extent on the opening of the week. Perhaps few more such opening days would develop a sudden resolution on the part of the managers to "shut up shop" for the Summer, and take things easy at the seashore.

TWO DEATHS AT CHICAGO.

"Enoch Arden" Does Not Open at the Advertised Time.—"Blue Beard Jr." a Go.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

CHICAGO, ILL., JULY 9.—"Enoch Arden" failed to open Sunday night, as advertised, at Hooley's. By four o'clock in the afternoon it became apparent that the scenery could not possibly be put into shape in time, and the sale of tickets was stopped. It devolved upon Will McConnell to make the unwelcome announcement to a large audience in the evening. Last night the play was given in fine style. Much depends upon the scenic effect and the fourteen specialties introduced, and, enjoyable as the performance is, it is a question whether the legitimate dramatic effect of Tennyson's "Enoch Arden" is not sacrificed in the endeavor to make the production a catchy one with the public. The second edition of "Blue Beard Jr." which was presented last night, is an improvement over the first, and, in its new and attractive dress, the piece ought to still further increase the remarkably successful run already insured for it. The weather is hot—the hottest of the season in fact—and the patent theatre coolers are being used to their utmost capacity. Sunday night Emily Lyton, the Minna of the "Little Lord Fauntleroy" Co. at the Columbia, was taken out for a ride on lake by Herbert A. Parsons, a wealthy club man of San Francisco and an Idaho mine owner, at present residing in Chicago. Mr. Parsons had frequently promised to teach Miss Lyton to swim, and after they had donned bathing suits in the cabin of the yacht Mr. Parsons plunged in. Miss Lyton found the water too cold, and before she could be induced to enter it her companion was seized with cramps and was drowned.... On July 3, Jennie E. Mortimer, wife of Harry J. Mortimer, of Mortimer & Long's Theatre Co., died of Bright's disease, aged thirty-one. She was buried 5, at Mount Calvary Cemetery. The funeral was attended by professionals and the floral tributes were numerous.

Howard; Tom Kathel Kerr; William Sidney Barthell; Annie Lee, Marion Abbott; Marian Lane, Mrs. Farren; Lady Glenroy; Pauline Sanderson; Arthur Master Phillips; Edith Little; Vinnie; Arthur Arden; May Haines; Eddie Arden; Beside Bennett; Little Ruth, Little Man Abbott; Little Prue, Miss Agnes; Little Dorothy, Miss Mannie; Little Barbara, Miss Peggy; As the scenery did not arrive until late, the performance was not completed until long after midnight, and it is thus impossible to make a legitimate attribution. There are seven acts divided into thirty scenes.... In the fort Wayne included specialties by the Aldens, Ronalds and Harrells; Trimmers and McCloud and Farquhar Beaton. This part of the programme is under the direction of James Adams. The scenery was painted by Henry E. Hoyt and is magnificent. The music is catchy and the new dances introduced by W. W. Walton the stage manager were highly applauded. The executive staff comprises: Wm. A. McConnell, manager;

THE TURF.

THOROUGHBREDS AT CHICAGO.

Proctor Knott Outruns Spokane at a Mile and a Quarter.

H. H. H.—Detroit.—L. John L. Sullivan and Paddy Ryan fought on turf but once—at Mississippi City, Miss., nine rounds being fought in less than eleven minutes. 2 H. S. Orange.—There are others equally as clever as him at the present time. Jim has lost some of his quickness.

T. R. T.—Providence.—In case of a draw, the bet would be drawn like a special rule of the ring making all wagers on the actual result of a prize fight go to the same way as the main stakes.

S. W. H.—Metropoli.—Neither would have won in case fight itself had been a draw. See answer to T. R. T.

Q. W. C.—Chicago.—John Sullivan, Sullivan and Mitchell, and round, was not actually won by either principal, although John L. had the best of it all through.

J. W. B.—Georgetown.—See sketches of the men in another column, and any additional particulars.

W. F.—Natchez.—See sketch of the men in another column, and any additional particulars.

J. M.—Portage.—They met in one or two boxing exhibitions in Boston, Mass., where both resided, some years ago, but so far as we know there was no knocking out done.

A. F.—Buffalo.—If the bet was upon the result of the fight between Sullivan and Mitchell in France, it is a draw.

CONSTANT READER.—Amsterdam.—Sullivan never knocked Kilrain out previously to the date of your comment.

F. F.—Lake Kilrain was born at Greenpoint, N. Y.

E. D. G.—Ritzville—Tom Sayers' height was 5 ft. eight, and he is stated to have weighed 16 lbs. the day he beat John C. Heenan.

X. Provision.—I. Cannot say. 2. Both of Sullivan's eyes were dislocated and his lip slightly cut.

AQUATIC.

E. B. P.—Brooklyn.—From the secretary of the New York Yacht Club, Madison Avenue and Twenty-seventh Street, this city.

BASEBALL, CRICKET, ETC.

J. R. Tacoma.—The base runner is obliged to return and touch his base after the batsman makes a foul hit. If he fails to do so, Sec. 13 of Rule 48 says that "he may be put out at the base he fails to touch, or by being touched by the ball in the hands of the fielder in the same manner as in running."

T. B.—St. Paul.—The bet is a draw if the Minneapolis Club disbanded before the close of the season.

M. L. O.—A loss if he bets that a club will win and it fails to do so.

Port Allegany.—The umpires in the American Association have been officially ordered to construe that rule as follows: "If the batsman is hit by a pitched ball while making a strike he is not permitted to take his base, and he is out if hit by a pitched ball while making a strike."

W. H. A. M.—The League Club won the championship of the International League in 1886. The Rochester ranked second, Toronto, third, Hamilton, fourth, Buffalo, fifth, Syracuse, sixth, Binghamton, seventh, and Oswego, eighth, did not win.

TURF.

P. J.—Newport.—His races at that distance have been very creditable, while his introduction was light and the racing not so good as usual. Result: Purse $600, of which $100 to second, for three year old fillies, $100 each, h. f., $100 added, $200 to second.

G. F.—Trotter, 2 miles, 1:54½.—Purcell, the favorite, first, in 1:54½; Brandt, 111. Barnes, second, by a neck; Partlow, 118. Allen, the favorite, third, a length behind. .... Purse $600, of which $100 to second, for three year old colts, a mile and a sixteenth—Heron, 115. Lewis, first, having led from end to end, in 1:53½; Teuton, 122. Murphy, third, three lengths; no other started. .... The Englewood Stakes, for three year old fillies, $100 each, h. f., $100 added, $200 to second.

MISCELLANEOUS.

X. Y. Z.—Pittsburg.—Answer next week. Research is being made.

H. B. C.—I. Not that we know of. 2. There are none published at present.

D. P. AND G. G.—No. Not if he lives up to his agreement.

K. Three Bridges.—The lengths being the same, according to your statement, that is, each side one mile, it will require the same number of picks all round.

John A.—Buffalo.—We do not know anything about that company or its schemes.

ATHLETIC.

Adelphi Athletic Club.

This club held their third open handicap games at the grounds of the Manhattan Athletic Club, this city, on Saturday afternoon, July 6, when they were favored with delightful weather, and the sports were witnessed by a good sized assemblage, including many amateur athletes. The special feature of the meeting was the attempt on the part of T. P. Conneff, secretary of the Adelphi, to eclipse the record for four mile running, but in this he failed, although creating new figures for intermediate distances, as noted in the summary below. Another interesting event was the match standing long jump, without weights, between M. W. Ford and J. W. Rich, which was taken by the former, his antagonist not showing up in as good form as upon previous occasions. Result: Purse $600 of which $100 to second, for maiden two year olds, five furlongs—Prodigal Son, 111. Allen, the favorite, first, in 1:05; Mary Malloy, 108. Fox, second, by two lengths; Mount Lebanon, 111. Stoval, third, three lengths away.... Purse $600, of which $100 to second, for all ages, a mile and a furlong—Grace, 105. Stoval, first, in 1:22½; Ja. 10. Hollis, second, by two lengths; Outright, 110. Barnes, third, a neck behind. .... Purse $600, of which $100 to second, for all ages, six furlongs—Famine, 104. Elkie, the favorite, second, in 1:21½; Arundel, 104. Steppie, third, a length behind.

The weather on Thursday afternoon, 4, was delightful and the attendance almost equaled that of Derby Day. The main attraction was the race for the Sheridan Stakes, in which Proctor Knott again met his quondam conqueror Spokane and this time the Kentuckian carried off the prize quite handily, although he had ten pounds the best of the weights. Result: Purse $600 of which $100 to second, for a handicap, one mile and a quarter—Guilford, 103. Stoval, the favorite, third, a head behind. .... The Double Event, a sweepstakes for two year olds, foals, of 1887, $100 each, $4,000 added, in proportion of $2,500 to the first event and $1,500 to the second event, $1,000 additional, in plate or money, at the option of the winner, in case the two events be won by the same horse, the winner to receive $1,000 of the added money and the subscriber and starting money the second $500 and the third $1,500 of the added money and furlongs—W. L. Scott, Varsro, by Alvernia, 122. McLaughlin, the favorite, first, in 1:05½; Livonia, 107. Anderson, second; Acapulco, 110. Hamilton, third. The latter came up on the outside close to the rails, and many who were in a good position to see the finish were satisfied that it was wrong had been done the horse in not placing her first. Judges cannot be too careful, and one at least should always keep a sharp lookout for the nags that occasionally sneak up on the outside when not expected. It is not the first time just such mistakes have occurred, and we presume there will be repetitions in the future; but where officials attend strictly to their business there is no reason why any complaint of this sort should ever be heard.... The Hopeful Stakes for two year olds, $25 each, by two lengths; Handicap sweepstakes for all ages, $25 each, $750 added, $150 to second, one mile and a half, by the same distance.... The Handicap Stakes, for all ages, $25 each, $1,500 added, $500 to second, $150 to third, a mile and three-quarters—D. T. W. Fitzgerald, 117. Taylor, the favorite, first, in the fast time of 1:41; Brant, 102. Bergan, second by a head; Ovid, 94. J. Tribe, third, two lengths away.... The Double Event, a sweepstakes for two year olds, foals, of 1887, $100 each, $4,000 added, in proportion of $2,500 to the first event and $1,500 to the second event, $1,000 additional, in plate or money, at the option of the winner, in case the two events be won by the same horse, the winner to receive $1,000 of the added money and the subscriber and starting money the second $500 and the third $1,500 of the added money and furlongs—W. L. Scott, Varsro, by Alvernia, 122. McLaughlin, the favorite, first, in 1:05½; Livonia, 107. Anderson, second; Acapulco, 110. Hamilton, third. Trotter..... Hawbuck Hadaway
Owen Glenroy..... Fredericks D. C. Anderson
Glenroy..... Fleming

A benefit was given 10 to the widow and children of Samuel Pray, who lost his life in an attempt to save the theatre from fire on the afternoon of April 22. Every one connected with the house volunteered. The programme consisted of "Town and Country" and "Asmodeus," "The Heir at Law" was first acted here 14, and was cast as follows:

Daniel Dowlas..... Blake Steadfast..... Fredericks
Dick Dowlas..... Lester Kent Homespun..... Dr. Pangloss
Herr Moreland..... Mrs. Vache John..... Gallot
Dobson..... Mrs. Winstratley..... Miss Telbin
Caroline..... Mrs. Sergeant..... Mrs. Watts

The farce, "My Sister Kate," had its first performance here 16. Blake took a benefit 17, when was acted, for the first time in this theatre, Anna Cora Mowatt's play, "Fashion," cast as follows:

Adam Trueman..... Blake Augustus Fog..... McDonald
Count De Joymaire..... Lester Snobson..... Hadaway
Col. Howard..... Kingsley Zeke..... Thompson
Tiffey..... Fredericks Mrs. Tiffany Mrs. Winstanley
Tennish Twinkle..... Davis Gertrude..... Fanny Wallack

Millinette..... Rose Telbin
Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wallack Jr. commenced a return engagement 21, in "Othello," Wallack as the Moor, Vandenhoff as Iago; 22, "Werner;" 23, "The Bridal;" 24, "The Merchant of Venice" and "Rent Day;" 26, "Pizarro;" 27, "The Bridal" and "Roberto Macaire" Lester as Roberto Macaire, Hadaway as Jacques Strop; 28, "Speed the Plough;" 30, Vache took a benefit, when the bill was "Virginia;" John R. Scott (first appearance at this theatre) as Virginius, Held (first appearance here) as Ictius, Fanny Wallack as Virginia; also "The Comedy of Errors," Vache and Hadaway Dromio of Ephesus and Dromio of Syracuse, Kingsley and Shaw acting Antiphilus of Ephesus and Syracuse. "The Poor Gentleman" was given July 1, with Blake as Robert Bramble. The season closed July 4, 1848.

A summer season was inaugurated 6, by the Monplaisir Troupe, embracing the names of Mors and Adele Monplaisir, Mons. Bartholomew, Corby, Grossi, Corlett, Anna Bulan, Mine, Bartholomew, Mile, Bondeau and Mrs. Waldegrave, L'Albion, and six tableau-women, the initial performance. No performance was given Saturday evening, 15, as the stage was required for a rehearsal of the ballet "Le Diable a Quatre," first acted Tuesday, 18. "La Fille MacGarrick" was a new comic ballet, first produced 27.

Notwithstanding the season was a very brilliant one, Col. Mann could not save anything and he was obliged to relinquish the theatre to Mr. Raymond, who held a mortgage on it. The copartnership of Mann & E. A. Marshall was dissolved Oct. 25, 1848, and the business of the firm was closed up by E. A. Marshall.

The next season, commenced Aug. 28, 1848, with Edwin Forrest in Othello, and during this engagement he appeared in "Virginia," "Richelieu" and "Damon and Pythias." John Dyott first appeared here on this occasion, acting Iago.

The first great success was the dramatic spectacle "Monte Cristo" acted for the first time in America Dec. 25, 1848. It had a run of fifty nights and was cast as follows:

Edmond Dantes..... J. Lester Albert..... Baker
Mons. Morel..... T. H. C. Edwards..... L. L. Moore

Edwin Forrest commenced a three weeks' engagement April 23, 1849. The houses were crowded and the reception, on every occasion, was an ovation to his genius. This engagement, beginning with that of Macready at Astor Place Opera House, naturally excited the public mind. Discussion and dispute ran high between friends of the two rival tragedians. May 7, Forrest acted Macbeth, Fanny Wallack Lady Macbeth; 10 was the night of the Astor Place Opera House riot. Forrest played Spartacus in "The Gladiator" and Fanny Wallack was the Julia, "Macbeth" was played at the Astor Place Opera House with Macready as Macbeth and C. W. Clarke as Macduff; it was also played the same night at the Old Bowery Theatre with Thomas Hamblin as the Thane and John Ryder as Macduff. The opera of "The Enchantress" was first sung in America May 30, 1849, and enjoyed a run of twenty nights. The cast was as follows:

Don.... Harrison Duke..... Crocker
Dr. Mathaniasius D. Whiting Galeo..... Sanford
Ramer..... Borval Nuequez..... McDonald
Chief of Senate..... Walter Brachie..... Horton
Chief of Appius C. Bartram..... L. J. Vinton

The season of 1849-50 commenced Sept. 17, 1849. Wm. Rufus Blake was acting manager, and the company was as follows: Anderson, John Dyott, Shaw, W. Fredericks, D. Whiting, Chas. Pope, Pilot, Sturtevant, P. C. Byrne, W. B. Chapman, Wardens, J. Warwick, J. Lester, T. H. Hind, Ghent, Harris, Thompson, Mesdames Held, Knight, Blake, Loder, Kate Horn, Carman, Thompson, Flynn, Warwick, Lewis, Marshall and Wrench. The extra ladies and gentlemen were Bernard, Cotten, Keim, Johnson, Misses Cooke, Wells, P. C. Byrne, and James Jackson. On the Irish comedian made his American debut on the opening night in the opera of "The Black Domine" as a tenor. Hudson failed to make the anticipated success as a singer and turned his attention to Irish parts in which he had previously appeared at the Haymarket. He made his appearance as Pandee O'Rafferty in "Born to Good Luck" and shortly after acted Connor the Raish in "The Knight of Arva" and then Phelim O'Flannigan in "Flannigan and the Fairies." His rendering of Irish character, particularly in the higher class, was excellent. One evening during the performance of this drama the following incident occurred: The fair scene terminates with a fight. After the belligerents had ceased their shillalah flourishing, the business of the piece required that Phelim's eye should exhibit an ugly gash. The wound was bathed in whisky, and then Phelim, to the disgust of many present, proceeded to drink the whisky. This excited applause which was not unlike the song of the goose. He never repeated the offence. In June, 1850, he played a farewell engagement here, and sailed for Europe June 10. He made an ample fortune, and at last accounts was comfortably situated in a beautiful chateau one mile from Bologne-sur-Mer. Fr.

Charles W. Coulcock made his American debut

Oct. 8, 1849, playing the Stranger to Cushman's Mrs. Haller. During that engagement he played Jacques, Macbeth, St. Pierre, Master Walter, Othello, Cardinal Wolsey, Duke Aranza, King Lear and Benedick. The following was the cast of the several plays mentioned:

Mr. C. was born in London, Eng., April 26, 1815, and his American debut was as stated above. After a brief tour as the leading support to Charlotte Cushman, he settled down in Philadelphia at the Walnut Street Theatre, for four seasons as leading man. While there Mine, Celeste played a star engagement (1852), and during the time did "The Willow Cope," a new drama brought to this country by her. So well pleased was she with Mr. Coulcock's performance of Luke Fielding, that she presented him with a copy of it, with the right to produce it. For four seasons he traveled as a star with this play. In 1858, he came to New York and joined Laura Keene's company at the Olympic Theatre. For about twenty years, from 1858, he was one of our best stars. When the Madison Square Theatre was dedicated, Feb. 4, 1880, Mr. Coulcock played Dunstan Kirke in "Hazel Kirke." He had created the character when the play was first produced under the title of "An Iron Will." At Low's Opera House, Providence, R. I., Oct. 27, 1879, he continued to act it at the Madison Square Theatre until the play was withdrawn, May 31, 1881, after its four hundred and eighty-sixth consecutive representation. A complimentary benefit was given Mr. Coulcock May 10, 1887 (matinee), at the Star Theatre, this city, in celebration of his fiftieth year upon the stage. The committee who had charge of the affair were: Edwin Booth, W. J. Florence, Joseph Jefferson, Theo. Moss, William Winter, Rudolph Aronson, H. C. Miner, William Hayden, Edward Harrigan, J. W. Rosenquist, J. M. Hill, John Stetson, Lawrence Barrett, Lester Snobson, A. M. Palmer, C. B. Jefferson, R. E. J. Miles, E. G. Gilmore, T. H. French, Daniel Frohman, M. W. Hanley, F. B. Murtha, N. C. Goodwin, J. H. and Tony Pastor, Edwin Booth appeared in the third act of "A Cold Day" Co., will be married shortly to Minnie Foster, a soubrette, of Boston, Mass.

Manager Charles Osgood of P. Harris' staff, was a CLIPPER caller July 5.

David Towers, Neil Burgess' manager, sailed for London, July 3.

He has an inkling that a play is to be put on over there that will introduce Mr. Burgess' patented horse racing effect. Mr. Towers goes over to investigate.

Clementine Vaughn, who has a host of friends in a host of cities, has returned to town, after an enjoyable outing at Far Rockaway, Seabright, and other salt air resorts. Miss Vaughn has not yet completed her plans for next season, though she has several others under consideration.

I. A. Solomon, the well known advertising agent last season with Fisher's "A Cold Day" Co., will be married shortly to Minnie Foster, a soubrette, of Boston, Mass.

Glady Rankin will be a member of "The Burglar" Co., next season. She will then be Mrs. Sydney Drew. Her husband will also be a member of the same organization.

CHESS.

To Correspondents.
J. SHAFER, Waco, Tex.—Rosenthal is still living, but M. J. Taubenhause has won the title of "Champion of France."
DR. HALLETT, Des Moines.—A package sent, which will compel you to extend the belt of your scrap book, we guess. Thanks for compliment and kind wishes.

CHAS. A. GILDER.—We are highly gratified at your response. Bring forth from your treasures things new and old; a beautiful thing in chess is always beautiful, whether it originated in the year 1, or 1,000,000.

BRO. HUNTINGTON.—The assurance is very gratifying.

WM. STEINITZ.—Thank you for kind reply; we recognize the pressing demands on your time.

J. C. BIRD.—Thank you for slip and additional information.

BRO. GOLDBREATH.—Was that what you required, in full?

THOS. M. BROWN.—No information could be more pleasant, and it was not one word too full; we wish you success.

A copy of the "MONOXYD IN MEMORIAM" your honored friend (CLINE), New York, 1876, will be yours.

W. H. McMICHAEL.—We reprint an old timer, this week, for the very honest purpose of asking your help; we do not know the modus. Look to it; go a "gimlet eye" on it; tell us what you think.

European Tournaments.

Our contributor A. J. De Frost, summarizes the leading pending foreign events. The Sixth Congress of the famous German Chess League will be held at Breslau, in Silesia, the home of the renowned Prof. Andersen, commencing on the 11th of July, prox. There will be as with prizes of $40, $20, $10, $10 and $6; II—a first class, with prizes of $120, $60, $30 and $40; a second class, and a solving tourney.

Herrn H. v. Schmid and Max Kuehne, judges of the tournament. Our correspondent has rendered a preliminary digest (i.e., by numbers and mottoes) in The Schach-Zeitung for June, just to hand. After critically sifting the 31 three movers sent in, eleven real candidates for the three prizes were found, with four honorary mentions, and the names of the contestants. There were also some special prizes. The names of the winners will probably be disclosed at the Congress.

Gen. Marquis d' Audignac has accepted the presidency of the committee in charge of the organizing of the Paris International Chess Tournament, which will be held Aug. 15. The General was president of the Paris Congress of 1878. The tourney will be held at the rooms of the Cercle Bibliographique, No. 2 Rue St. Simon. There will be six prizes of $200, $20, $100, $120, $80 and $40, which, however, are likely to be increased in value.

Necrology.—On June 17, at St. Louis, passed away Col. Thomas Tascar Gant, in the sixtieth year of his age. The Post Dispatch of the 18th gives a grand obituary of this distinguished statesman, as a just and a public man, but a downy contributor to the bird's nest, as he says. "THE CLIPPER shall have the first privilege of giving an obituary notice of one of Caisca's most distinguished veterans." Col. Gant's name is indissolubly connected with the early days of history of our country, when chess was considered a noble art and solitaire rather than an act of memory. The writer speaks by the book when he says that Col. G. was mainly instrumental in establishing the permanent chess organization in St. Louis. Men such unselfish promoters of our gentle game deserve such unmixed plaudits as are befitting the visible expression of regret, and their votes with a manly tear cast their people upon his cairn.

BREVITIES.—We learn from The Woonsocket Reporter that Mr. Hawes of Woonsocket, has been making it lively for the players of that city by the following score. Hawes 5, Mee 4, drawn 2; Hawes 4, Kelly 1, drawn 0; Hawes 4, Smith 2, drawn 2; Hawes 4, Pickering 2, drawn 0; Smith 3, Walker 1, drawn 2. Mr. Hawes has challenged.

Read to play a match of thirty games for a purse of $300, door receipts to be divided equally, the match to consist of fifteen openings... Nothing but the highest praise can be said of Mr. Barker's staying powers and hang on' principles, with six wins gained and only one against him. The Barkerites say it suits him (Barker) to be the best match player of the age, not excepting even Wylie.

On the previous evening the visitors were entertained at dinner by the L. R. B., at the Holborn restaurant, a large company being assembled and Major Edward Matthey occupying the chair. After the usual loyal toasts had been proposed and responded to the chairman proposed toasts to the President of the United States and the health of the winning team, observing that he would carry the company back about two hundred years, the reason being that tomorrow was the Fourth of July, the anniversary of American Independence. They were more associated one with another. In fact, they were now brothers and not fighting one against another. Major Frost of the Massachusetts team responded. On the Fourth of July the Massachusetts men met the Sussex team at Brighton, the light being clear, but a strong wind blowing. The American won by a score of 980 to 910. The totals made by the winning team at each range were as follow:

	200 yards.	500 yards.	600 yards.

AQUATIC.

Sailing on the Sound.

The Larchmont Yacht Club celebrated the glorious Fourth by holding their tenth annual regatta, for which the starters were fairly numerous, and the race may be termed a success, although the early part was marked by light winds, quite variable. Later on a rain squall came up, the wind increased in force and became steady, so that a good race home resulted. Official summary:

Race for Forty Footers.

A special regatta for yachts of the forty foot class, being the second race for the Thayer Cup, was sailed over a course of ten miles to windward and return, from the Larchmont Y. C. house to a stakeboat off Stamford, Ct., on Long Island Sound, on Saturday, July 6. There were four starters, the absence of the Liris causing considerable disappointment to the many yachtsmen present. That she did not take part was due to the fact that her bowsprit was sprung in the race on Thursday, and in the interim she had been unable to get a new spar, or to strengthen the old one so as to withstand the strain of the job in a stiff breeze. At the time of starting the wind was fairly good from east by south but soon afterwards it fell off in strength, and the Marquita, Gorilla, and Nymph, by making the mistake of standing in close to the Long Island shore, were caught in a calm, while the Pappleo, which was third to cross the line, by standing away from the shore held what breeze there was and during the two hours or so that the others were stuck fast, as it were, opened a gap of several miles, going around the stakeboat off Stamford at 3h. 45m. 6s., nearly two hours to the good. The wind shifting to the southward, the other boats were enabled to get under way again, and they girded around the stakeboat in the following order and time: Gorilla, 5h. 32m. 35s.; Marquita, 5h. 36m. 43s.; Nymph, 5h. 39m. 46s.; During the beat back to the starting point, the wind freshening, the Nymph outsailed the Marquita and Gorilla, gaining second place by time allowance. Start. Elapsed time. Corrected time.

	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed time.	Corrected time.
Pappleo	12 05m. 20s.	6h. 31m. 37s.	6h. 23m. 17s.	h. m. s.
Nymph	12 09 (38)	6 37 (55)	7 28 (17)	7 28 (06)
Gorilla	12 09 (29)	7 32 (57)	7 29 (38)	7 30 (45)
Marquita	12 06 (27)	7 37 (48)	7 30 (38)

The Pappleo was not measured for time allowance. By elapsed time she beat the Nymph 1h. 5m. The Gorilla came in ahead of the Nymph, but on time allowance was beaten by her 39 seconds.

Crack Yachts Abroad.

The Royal Clyde Yacht Club regatta opened on Saturday, July 6, when the chief interest centred in the contest between the Valkyrie and her old opponent, the Irex. The weather was fine and the breeze was tolerably good. The regatta took place at Glasgow, the Irex allowing the Valkyrie 5m. 50s. over a fifty mile course, starting from Hunter's Quay. A smart trip down the channel ensued, and the Valkyrie and the Irex in turn headed and put one another astern. Some clever work was noticeable in both cases, and at times the contest took quite an unexpected turn. On the run up in earnest, however, the Irex got to the front in 4m. 38s. 46s., the Valkyrie's time was 4h. 50m. 24s., and she took second place.

CANOEING IN JERSEY WATERS.—The canoeists connected with the New Jersey Athletic Club held a regatta on Saturday afternoon, July 6, on the Hudson River. It was open to all amateur canoeists, and two prizes were given in each event, the rules of the American Canoe Association governing. The weather conditions were favorable to success, and the races drew together quite a crowd. Result: Three mile sailing race—C. B. Vaux, New York Canoe Club, first, in 28m. 20s.; B. Douglas, Newark, second, Sailing three miles—N. H. Day, New Jersey A. C., first, in 33m.; W. Scott, Essex Canoe Club, second. Half mile upset race, sailing—G. B. Douglass, Newark, sailed over alone. Senior paddling race, one mile—W. E. Stewart, Ianthe C. C., first, in sun.; L. B. Palmer, same club, second. Junior paddling race, one mile—N. H. Day, New Jersey A. C., first, in 6m. 15s.; O. F. Coe, second. Tandem paddling race, one mile—John L. and F. B. Collins, Brooklyn C. C., first, in 6m. 30s.; E. Seidell and F. Beardsley, Brooklyn C. C., second.

OVATION TO THE CORNELLS.—Upon the arrival of the victorious Cornell University crew at Ithaca, N. Y., after their three successive victories, they were the surprised recipients of a most enthusiastic welcome at the hands of their fellow colleagues and the citizens generally, a large procession meeting them at the railroad depot and escorting them to Dewitt Park, the members and Trainer C. E. Courtney occupying carriages, which were drawn by students. There addresses of welcome were made and congratulations tendered by the Mayor and other prominent citizens. A triumphal procession through the leading thoroughfares of the city followed, accompanied by the ringing of bells, blowing of steam whistles and the firing of cannon. The residences and business houses along the line of march were profusely decorated. Afterwards a pyrotechnic display was in order, the demonstration winding up with a banquet to the victorious oarsmen.

THE SING SING YACHT CLUB enjoyed their annual open regatta on the Hudson July 4, the course sailed over being from the club house to Dobbs Ferry and return, a distance of twenty miles. The boats numbered twenty-nine, but when the yachts were opposite Tarrytown, a severe rain and wind storm overtook them, causing a general reefing and leading to the withdrawal of a number of the boats, only five finishing. Their elapsed time was as follows: Class 1, Mergui, in 7h. 20m. 38s.; class 6, Madge, in 5h. 43m. 17s.; class 7, My F., in 4h. 32m. 36s.; class 8, Pauline, in 6h. 33m. 49s.; class 9, Ermine, in 3h. 16m. 2s.

A SWIMMING MATCH, the principals being A. Picard and E. Pollock, members of the Rheinlust Swimming Club, for a gold watch, came off in the East River, July 4. The start was made at the foot of Seventy-sixth Street, the course being one mile, straightaway, down stream, with a strong tide. The race was well contested, Picard taking the lead at the start and keeping it for a block or so, when Pollock, who was in the better condition, drew level, gained the lead in a few strokes, and held it to the finish, completing the distance about ten feet ahead, in fourteen minutes.

The Cedar Point Yacht Club of Bridgeport, Ct., sailed the second of their present season's regattas off Seaside Park, July 4, the prizes consisting of pennants. The course was nineteen miles, triangular in shape, and eleven boats started, of which five withdrew when they were struck by a sharp thunderstorm, with a high northwest wind. Winners: Clytie, Rival, and Quaker City.

The SOUTH BOSTON CANOE CLUB held a regatta off the club house on Saturday, July 6, three races being decided under favorable conditions as regards weather. Result: G. B. Johnson, second; G. D. Smith, single paddle race, half mile, straightaway—A. M. Birrell, in 3m. 10s.; J. F. Ackland, second; in 3m. 10s.; W. J. Looney, third; in 3m. 10s. Tandem paddling race, half mile, straightaway—J. J. Kellher and V. B. Johnson, first, in 3m. 10s.; J. F. Lampos and V. B. Johnson, second, in 3m. 10s.

BASEBALL.

STRAY SPARKS FROM THE DIAMOND.

Gossip About Ball Tossers from Here, There and Everywhere.

A special meeting of the American Association was held July 5, in Louisville. The meeting was called for the purpose of taking action on the fines imposed by Davidson of the Louisville Club upon his players. It was the first time on record in which the American Association was appealed to by the players of any of its clubs against a manager's unjust fines. As the case would establish a precedent for future action the meeting was regarded as a very important one. Six clubs were represented by the presence of officials and proxies. The Louisville Club was represented by Messrs. Botts, Reiger, Hall, Gatto and Pottinger, the new owners, and by Mr. Davidson, the ex-president. The Louisville players in attendance were Heckert, Raymond, Ewing, Vaughan, Shannon, Wolf, Ehret and Cook. It was decided that the association should first meet in executive session to ascertain the present status of the Louisville Club and who was behind it. All the representatives expressed themselves as being very favorable to the new organization and desirous of helping the club. The meeting was called to order at noon by President Wikoff. The first business was the formal transfer of the Louisville Club from the old to the new owners. This occupied only a few minutes, and the players of the Louisville Club were then called in. Heckert made the first statement as to the manner in which the men may be treated by Davidson, and detailed the fines which had been assessed. Statements were also made by Wolf, Shannon, Ewing and Vaughan, all of them being substantially the same. Eight players had been fined various sums aggregating $1,425, but $1,200 of these fines were imposed upon the six players who went up the Baltimore stroke on June 14 and 15. The principal consideration was the cause of the strike in Baltimore and on this point both sides were heard fully. It appeared, however, that previous fine had caused that trouble. Wolf had been fined $25 for bad language used on a sleeping car. Vaughan had $25 for alleged stupid base running; Ehret and Cook $25 each for getting mixed up in their signs when they were acting as pitcher and catcher. Browning got $10 for failing to slide, and Shannon $20 for missed ball. These fines provoked the players, and they informed Davidson that they would not go on the field unless he remitted them. Instead of doing so he went to New York City, leaving the players to themselves. In view of this fact, and the further one that they had not been paid their salaries promptly, the Association decided to be lenient with the offenders. The fines of $100 each assessed upon Ehret, Browning, Cook, Heckert, Shannon and Raymond were accordingly remitted for the first day of the strike. These were the six players who refused to go upon the field. The next morning Wikoff returned to Baltimore and told the players to go on with the games and the Association would see that their wrongs, if any, were redressed. In spite of this the six men remained off the field until the next day. The Association regarded this as such a flagrant violation of discipline as to merit the severest punishment, and consequently the fines for June 15 were reimposed. John Ewing and Vaughan, all of whom had been fined $25, subsequently remitted them. The California League games played were as follows: On June 25, in San Francisco, the home team defeated the Sacramento by a score of 16 to 10. June 29, the Oaklands defeated the Sacramento by a score of 25 to 5. On the same day, at Stockton, the home team defeated the San Francisco by a score of 7 to 1. On June 30, at Sacramento, the home team defeated the San Francisco by a score of 14 to 13, and the Oaklands defeated the Stocktons by a score of 2 to 2. It took ten innings to decide the latter contest.

The big army of workmen who have been busy during the past week in preparing the new home for the New York team have accomplished a most wonderful task. They have succeeded in putting the field into such a shape that the New Yorks and Pittsburghs were able to play their regular scheduled game on the grounds on July 8. The field, which about a week ago was full of ditches and hills with a high road crossing through its centre, is now leveled off and rapidly approaching a degree of completion. The big grand stand, when completed, will be a double decker and will comfortably seat over 6,000 persons. The free seats, which extend along the right and left field fences from the grand stand, will accommodate fully 7,000 persons. The grounds themselves are 400 by 460 feet. On the second day of the grand stand there will be built 100 private boxes, which will each contain six chairs.

The White-Rowe matter has taken a new turn. It was thought up to July 3 that the Pittsburg Club would not want the men, but the injury to Beckley on July 1 appears to have changed the situation. White was notified that he and Rowe would not be released, and both seemed satisfied. Each will get $1,250 release money and $500 advance on their salary.

A St. Louis paper says: "Stivits says that the New York Club owed him money, and that is why he left it." Stivits was never a member of the New York Club, but he did pitch for the York (Pa.) Club. St. Louis scribe got the two mixed on account of the former being "new."

King, the pitcher of the Cape May team, was to accompany the Yale and Harvard players to England, where they will play exhibition games during the coming Summer.

An Unatisfactory Race.

A single scull race between J. E. Muchmore of Minneapolis, Minn., and E. R. Turner of McGregor, Ia., for a gold medal, over a two mile course, with turn, took place July 4, the water being in first class condition. Muchmore started off at a slacking rate and for half a mile led by a length. After this he commenced coming back, and at the three quarter mark they were level. Previously to this Muchmore, as soon as he found Turner coming up, commenced to bore him out towards the Wisconsin side of the river. Turner, easing over and keeping out of his way until he got a chance to circumnavigate. About one eighth of a mile from the turn he had accomplished it, and with a strong stroke reached the turn three lengths ahead. Muchmore turning the same stake boat, Turner was four lengths to the good by the time he had turned, and kept this lead to within two hundred yards of the finish, when he eased up and allowed Muchmore to come up to within a length, just before the finish, but as they finished on opposite sides of the judges' boats, and the officials could not see both ways at the same time, they decided it a draw. Turner refused to row the race over, feeling that he had been wronged. However, they may now again in the near future.

The Dorchester Yacht Club had another regatta in Wadsworth Bay, Mass., on July 6, nine boats participating and the winners being: Fourth class, Posy, $100; fifth, Sixth Rocket.

There will be no open regatta on the Potowmack River, at Washington, D. C., this season. Cause, inability of the Potowmack Boat Club and Columbia Athletic and Boat Club to come to an understanding.

The Anadostan Boat Club, which was crippled by the fire, has taken out a permit for a new boat house, which will, of course, be a big improvement on the old structure.

BARTLEY McCULLUM, manager of Florence Hamilton, was referee of the rowing regatta at Seabrook Lake on the Fourth of July.

THE TURF.

Brighton Beach Races.

The meeting of the Brighton Beach Racing Association was resumed on the Fourth of July, and, despite the rainstorm that prevailed, there was a large gathering at the course. The track was very heavy, and the racing only fair. Result: Purse $500, the entrance money, $5 each, to the second horse, for all ages, selling allowances, four and a half furlongs—J. Flynn's Glenluco, by St. Martin 5—111, Vincent, first, in 0:58; Dago, 6—109, Barton, second, by two lengths; Kismet, 5—105, Mosher, third, by the same distance;.... ## THE TRIGGER.

Another American Victory.

On July 5 the team of Massachusetts riflemen abroad supplemented their previous victories with a defeat of the representatives of the South London Rifle Club at Nunhead. The weather was clear and pleasant, but the wind was bauling. Our men made the best score at 200yds, that they have so far accomplished shooting from the shoulder, since their arrival in England. The individual scores of the American team are as follows:

	200 yards.	300 yards.	600 yards.
Hinman	.....	38	38
Merrill	27	32	29
Johnston	27	28	25
Bunstead	29	30	31
Doyle	32	31	25
Barton	33	29	27
Farrow	29	28	29
Farnsworth	31	33	29
Edes	30	33	28
Hussey	29	32	25
Sergeant Bull	33	31	32
F. Bell	29	35	24
Totals.....	360	372	336

Total at all ranges 1,068. Against this the South London Club put in a total of 1,025, thus leaving the American boys victory by 43. On Saturday the Americans went into camp at Wimbledon, where they are to remain during the current week, competing with the English volunteers, using British rules, and then they are to go to Paris, sailing for home on July 31.

THE PELHS BADGE was shot for at Woolwind Park, L. I., by trap shots, on July 4, each contestant firing at seven birds. H. Blattmacher, 25yds., rise; Dr. Shields, 30yds.; C. A. Seddons, 25yds., and J. McKane, 30yds., each killed seven, and in shooting off shields won, having killed thirteen birds out of fifteen shot at.

DEATHS IN THE PROFESSION.

D'ALVINI the juggler, who had recently come into high favor and considerable fame through his association with Kellar and Herrmann, died Wednesday, July 3, at his home, 5648 Lasalle Street, Chicago, Ill. The funeral took place the following Friday, and was largely attended by professionals interment was at Oakwood. D'Alvini was home on his vacation at the time of his death, having arranged to accompany Herrmann again next summer. The latter part of his vacation began to feel ill, however, and to his grief, urged by his wife and physician, to do so until the morning of Friday, on which he died. His disease was typhoid pneumonia, but his death was hastened by an ulcer in the brain that developed suddenly on Wednesday into a serious condition, the patient becoming unconscious early in the forenoon and remaining so until he died. D'Alvini was born in London 42 years ago and his real name was William Armstrong. He was a juggler from his earliest boyhood and a most persistent student of his art. He had traveled extensively, and about nine years ago met and married in Germany the lady who appeared as his assistant—quite a clever juggler herself. Her maiden name was Isabella English. She was also born in England, at Newcastle-on-Tyne, and was known across the water as Bela Zento, of the famous Zento Troupe of female bicyclists. She and Prof. D'Alvini have been married nine years. It is about six years since Prof. and Mme. D'Alvini sailed from Barcelona, Spain, to seek fortune in the New World. They stopped at points in the West India Islands and set foot first on the new continent at Montevideo, Uruguay. Three years later they were separated, and Mme. D'Alvini went to South America, and remained there until she met Mr. Rodi, a famous magician, who adopted her when a child, and raised and educated her. D'Alvini's fortune was a combination of drugs and during the last years of his life accumulated considerable property. The address of Miss Clark is referred to by John W. Hendrickson, Mrs. Rodi's lawyer, and the name of the deceased is given to the Duchess of York, Atkins Lawrence will be the Richmond, D. K. Harkins the Buckingham and Beatrice Cameron the Lady Anne.

Manager W. J. Fleming returned to town July 3 from a trip to the White Mountains, and left again on 11 on a yachting tour down the St. Lawrence, following his return to the last resting place in Mount Hope Cemetery.

DR. HENRY L. CLARK after a long illness died at Bowring Green, Mo., June 30, aged nearly sixty-eight years. A number of years ago Dr. Clark was treasurer of Ben De Bar's Theatre, St. Louis, and was also employed in a like capacity at one time at John Bates' Theatre, Cincinnati. His wife was a leading lady of ability and considerable note, Mrs. Ed. Tannhill, the well known soubrette, whose professional name is Bessie Clark, was adopted by them when a child, and raised and educated for the stage. The deceased was an accomplished druggist and during the last years of his life accumulated considerable property. The address of Miss Clark is referred to by John W. Hendrickson, Mrs. Rodi's lawyer, and the name of the deceased is given to the Duchess of York, Atkins Lawrence will be the Richmond, D. K. Harkins the Buckingham and Beatrice Cameron the Lady Anne.

Mitchell's left eye was almost closed, he had a lump on the side of his head, and his chest and ribs were bruised and sore. Sullivan's eyes were both in semi-mourning and his mouth was slightly cut, these being the only marks visible. On the way from the battle ground the party were arrested by the gendarmes and taken to Senlis, where they were locked up over night and then released on bail of $80 each the following morning. They lost no time in getting to London, and as neither put in an appearance when their cases were called, the bail was forfeited.

BARRIED IT.—Pat Kilian's Combination showed at the People's Theatre, Duluth, Minn., June 29. Kilian offered to give $100 to the man who beat him, for three minutes round, a la the great John J. McGonley went there from Ashland for the purpose of picking up the dust, and offered to bet $250 on the issue of the contest. When the time arrived for the men to appear on the stage, Management, in the course of procedure, sent a telegram which read received from the Golden Gate Athletic Club of San Francisco, saying that if Kilian should engage in a fight with Conley before the match between him (Pat) and Joe McAuliffe took place in "Frisco, the match with the latter would be off. Then the two kilers decided to settle at the time. The war of words that followed was hot, and was only ended by the turning out of the lights. A number of those present were of opinion that Pat did not care to encounter Conley upon such conditions, and among the disappointed audience Mike appeared to have the most friends.

Dr. T. F. QUINBY, of Minneapolis, Minn., recently received a verdict against The Daily Tribune, of that city, for $175 for a libel published soon after John L. Sullivan's glove fight with Patsy Cardill, nearly a year and a half ago. Dr. Quinby, who has been a surgeon ever since he was one of the surgeons who saw the broken nose, and after it was reset by Dr. Sayre in New York, The Tribune intimated that Dr. Quinby did not know his business. Everybody appears satisfied—Dr. Quinby that his reputation is re-established; if, indeed, it was ever injured by the libelous article, and The Tribune that it escaped so easily.

THE CHALLENGE issued by Billy Madden on behalf of Jack Ashton, offering to match the latest against Peter Jackson to fight with bare knuckles, under London rules, from $2,500 to $3,000 a side, is not likely to result in a meeting. Peter Jackson, of the Golden Gate Club, has an iron clad contract with Jackson for a year, the provisions of which deny him the privilege of meeting anyone during that time in a contest of more than six rounds, with gloves.

Joe McAuliffe has engaged the services of Jim Corbett as trainer and sparing partner during the work of preparing for his bare knuckle contest with Jackson, for a purse of $1,700, to take place at the rooms of the Golden Gate Athletic Club, in San Francisco, Cal., on the evening of Sept. 12.

ATHLETIC.

THE American Sporting Association gave a 15yds. foot-handicap race. Bachelder & Son's Schutzen Park, New Britain, Ct., July 4, and were fifteen heats with the following winners: First heat, E. Fanning, New Britain, Ct.; second heat, W. Kingsley, Southington; third heat, J. Boyle, New Britain; fourth heat, M. J. Flynn, Southington; fifth heat, M. McNamara, Unionville; sixth heat, J. Flynn, New Britain; seventh heat, J. Thomas, Newark, N. J.; eighth heat, F. Ahern, New Britain, Ct.; ninth heat, D. Ahern, New Britain, Ct.; tenth heat, P. Ahearn, New Britain; eleventh heat, J. McGrath, New Britain; twelfth heat, P. Corbett, New Britain; thirteenth heat, G. Harrington, Waterbury; fourteenth heat, E. King, New Britain; fifteenth heat, J. Zohen, New Britain. After the runners' names were drawn they were divided up into four heats, with the following winning the prizes in the order named: E. King, New Britain, Ct., $75; T. Ahern, New Britain, Ct., $20; M. McNamara, Unionville, Ct., $10; J. Thomas, Newark, N. J., $5. It was intended to run the handicap July 4, but the rain prevented. The first round of heats were run on the terribly heavy track and in a drizzling rain. It was then decided to postpone the finishing of the "cap" until the next day (5th). The bookmakers did a good business and many private bets were made.

E. W. JOHNSTON and W. F. Scott are now at Vancouver, B. C., and we are informed that they have placed a deposit of $500 in the hands of Thos. Allen, proprietor of the Balmoral Hotel, that city, with a challenge to any two athletes in the world to engage in a series of all around Caledonian games for $1,000 a side.

BOYER AND NEWGURK are to wrestle at the hall of the Bohemian Athletic Club, in Fifth Street, on Aug. 10. George Lustig, an Austrian, has challenged the winner.

J. J. NOLAN was the field captain for the South Boston lacrosse team when they won the first victory they ever gained on Boston Common July 4.

TWO TIGER games of football, for four gold medals, were played off in Caledonian Park, Newark, N. J., on July 6. The Caledonians defeating the Kearny Rovers by two goals to none. The Newark's O. N. T. Club afterwards gave the Caledonians by the same score. The O. N. T.'s therefore took the trophies.

WE HAVE letters for P. Hegemann and Geo. Conners.
